Ike Set To Fight For Slash

He Plans To Cut Air Force Funds, Give More Planes To Combat Units

WASHINGTON, May 16—(AP)—President Eisenhower was reported today to be in a mood to crack down on officials who may resist a proposed five billion dollar cut in Air Force funds.

Congressional leaders who have talked to him say they expect the President to devote part of his radio report to the nation Tuesday night to discussion of his administration's program for the Air Force. This program is described by its backers as designed to put more combat planes in the air while reducing former President Truman's request for long-range appropriations.

In informal talks, the President is said to have expressed the opinion that the Truman program for a maximum strength eventually of 143 wings represented only a "paper" goal.

Eisenhower is reported to have told lawmakers that his own look at the Air Force has convinced him it is just beginning to get in quantity the planes it needs. He is said to feel that the pressing job now is to fill up existing wings as fast as possible and let future goals take care of themselves.

Move Answers Democrats

Eisenhower's reported intent to uphold strongly Secretary of Defense Wilson's Air Force cut apparently would be designed to meet Democratic criticism of such a move.

The President apparently has satisfied Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, and other big Air Force advocates among the Republicans that his program is safe from a security standpoint. At the same time, he seems to have blocked off their hopes for deeper cuts elsewhere in the arms program.

But there are likely to be plenty of Democratic protests that cuts already proposed are too deep. For example, Sen. Symington (D-Mo), former Air Force secretary, said in a speech prepared for delivery at Enid, Okla., today that Eisenhower is putting "fiscal policies ahead of military strategy" and is making "incredible reduction in our own air strength."

"President Eisenhower criticized that policy in his campaign," Symington said. "I was hoping that his administration would not follow the advice of those who would cut down the flow of planes, funds, materials and men which must build tomorrow's Air Force today.

"But what did the administration offer us last week? More stretchout, more soothing syrup, more cars, more fat, less muscle."

Symington said there was no evidence the Russians plan any "stretch-out."

"In other words as the Soviets steadily plan to be stronger, we now plan to be weaker," he said.

Eisenhower's Tuesday night report apparently is being designed to meet just such charges.

Those who have talked with the President say they have found him confident, as a military man, that proposed budget cuts will not diminish this nation's ability to defend itself.

Kansas Flyer Dies In German Air Crash

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., May 16—(AP)—Staff Sgt. Dean O. Sohns, 32, was one of seven American airmen killed last night in a collision of three planes in Germany.

Word of his death was received here today by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Sohns, and by his wife at Salina, Kan.

Sohns, an Air Force radio operator, had been in Germany about four months. His wife and their two children Michael Andrew, 1, and Jon Christopher, 3, had just received clearance papers to join him in Germany.

He was a veteran of World War II and re-entered service five years ago.

Crossroads Comment

By G. H. S.

Here's a suggestion that might be suitable for consideration by city council:

It is against the law to honk an automobile horn in Rome, Italy, except in case of emergency.

—o—

According to the delapidated SEDALIA signs at the highway entrances our population is still 20,269.

—o—

Many Sedalia motorists have discovered they use no more gas and save more time by detouring over side streets to avoid the delaying traffic lights at Broadway and Ohio.

While the lights are preventing automobile accidents at the intersection, they have proved a dilemma and a distinct hazard to pedestrians. Those on foot, especially high school students also may find more safety in crossing the streets at other intersections, until a WALK signal is installed at Broadway and Ohio.

Event Will Run Two Days

May 23 Parade Opens Legion's Horse Show

The two-day horse show, sponsored by the American Legion, which will be held at the Coliseum at the fair grounds Saturday night, May 23, and Sunday afternoon, May 24, will get underway Saturday at 11 a.m. with a parade in downtown Sedalia.

A large number of organizations have indicated they will compete for the prize money offered by the Legion.

Prizes will be given for first, second, third places and ribbons will be given for fourth and fifth places for the best mounted group, the best float entered by an adult organization and the best float entered by a children's organization.

A feature of the parade, which promises to be most interesting, is the prize offered for the best novelty act. Clowns, odd vehicles and unusual animals and pets, soap box racers and decorated bicycles will be considered by the judges for this prize.

The parade committee has received letters from the Carrollton Saddle Club, the Lee's Summit Prairie Riders, the Otterville Boots and Saddle Club and the State Fair Saddle Club stating they will have mounted groups in the parade. Several saddle clubs have notified the committee they will have riders in the parade as individuals, but that the club would not be entered as a group.

Two Bands To Play

Miss Geraldine Teufel, director of music in Sedalia schools, has accepted an invitation for the Smith-Cotton band and Hubbard High band to be in the parade.

The Legion has received a number of entries from business firms and industries for the parade. All business firms are urged to enter the parade. Business and industrial entries will not be eligible for prize money.

For the horse show the McCormick Distilling Company of Weston, has entered four of its best jumping horses. Dick McCormick will show three of the horses and Mrs. McCormick the fourth.

Somerset Stables of Kansas City has entered five jumping horses. Four of these horses will be shown Saturday night and on Sunday afternoon the fifth will make its appearance. Mrs. Mackey, who will show one horse, says that this jumper displays temperament in that it refuses to jump under lights.

Taul and Taul Real Estate Co., North Kansas City, has entered the Fireball, parade horse which is well-known throughout eastern Kansas and Missouri.

McDaniel Stables Enter

Gaited horse classes for both Saturday night and Sunday have entries from McDaniel Stables, Springfield, who are bringing six of their top horses. Don Utz of Lexington has entered six gaited horses. Seven entries for gaited-horse classes have been received from the Gentry Stables at Lee's Summit.

Judy Sappington, Columbia, will show her three-gaited horse as well as compete in the children's equitation class. Horse fans will remember the familiar child rider from shows last summer, including the State Fair Horse Show.

The roadster class has exceeded all expectations with entries. Among early entries received by L. S. Helms, manager of the show for the American Legion, were six top roadsters from Delton Armstrong Stables at Nevada.

A. H. Wehling of Wichita, Kan., has entered his horses in the gaited-horse classes.

Three Local Men Back From Korea

Three men from this area are due to arrive today (Sunday) at San Francisco from Korea. They are among the 3,044 veterans of the First Marine Division on board the transport General Walker.

In the group are: Pfc. Joseph W. Bass, 2219 East Broadway, Cpl. Thomas C. Reid, 1614 West Main, and Sgt. Rayburn C. Hewitt, Knob Noster.

Joplin Man Suffers Severe Burns In Blast

JOPLIN, May 16—(AP)—William Spyres, about 68, proprietor of a grocery store and gas station in the enterprise community near here, was severely burned in an explosion and fire that destroyed his building early today.

Spyres suffered burns about the face, neck, arms and hands. He was taken to a Joplin hospital.

Volunteer firemen from Carl Junction went to the scene, but were unable to combat the flames.

Mrs. Spyres, who was in the building at the time, escaped injury.

Many Observe Special Day At Air Base

35th Division Joins Air Force In Show Of Military Might

Armed Forces Day was observed at the Sedalia Air Force Base, south of Knob Noster, Saturday when the 35th Infantry Division, Missouri National Guards, joined with the United States Air Forces in providing an appropriate exhibition of military equipment. In spite of the weather a good crowd visited the base between 1 p. m. and 6 p. m.

Probably the most thrilled over the event were several hundred children who accompanied their parents. From the time they were permitted to go out on the runways to the big planes until it was time to "close down", the children were in and out of the planes and filled with questions. Air Force men assigned to the planes were kept busy by children asking "what's this and what's that" while mother and dad stood by quietly wondering and learning through the questions of their children.

One Air Force non-commissioned officer remarked," it's been fun, but how these kids can ask questions."

The planes were not the only attraction. Down the runway were a line of various military vehicles, and much to the enjoyment of the youngsters were the two fire trucks. These vehicles belonged to both the 35th Division and the Air Force, all a necessary need for the armed forces.

The B-29 bomber and KC-97 a refueling plane with its large refueling attachment, brought question after question of those giving it an inspection.

The ground equipment was displayed by the units of the division from Sedalia and Warrensburg. Men from these two units were also on hand to explain the various exhibits.

The American Red Cross chapters from Warrensburg and Sedalia also participated as did Boy Scouts from the surrounding area.

The Navy made an attempt to get to the field with two fighter planes. They flew in from Olathe Naval Air Base, and were over the field, but due to weather conditions had to turn back to their home base. The Naval formation flight of PB4Ys and the Air Force formation of B-29s also had to be cancelled.

Members of the Missouri State Highway Patrol handled the traffic to and from the base.

The purpose of the open house was to give the public a better understanding of the nation's defense capability both on land and in air.

Col. Franklin K. Reyher, commanding officer of the Sedalia Air Force Base, said, "The weather no doubt kept many away from the base. However, we here at the SAFB appreciate the visit of the several hundred who did come and I am sure they enjoyed every minute of their visit. It is our sincere hope that when we have our next open house, weather conditions will be such that all those who didn't get to come to help participate in Armed Forces Day will be able to come then."

Drive Opens Monday To Raise $100,000 For A New Industry

Twenty-five teams of two men each will begin Monday a drive to interest Sedalians in investing in interest-bearing notes that will provide the money to purchase land and erect a building for a new industry which is coming to Sedalia.

Spearheaded by the industrial activities division of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, the drive has as its goal the necessary $100,000. However, since $25,000 of the fund has been raised, the workers Monday will have their sights set on getting the final $75,000 investment.

Three per cent interest on the notes is being offered through the Sedalia Improvement Association, Inc., which will purchase the land and construct the building, then rent it to the firm that will move here from Kansas City.

At the present time the firm is employing 90 persons and plans are for it to double its payroll within a two year period after opening here.

Moving as soon as the building is available, the business will bring some 15 to 20 top executives to Sedalia and will secure all its other employes locally. Some of these key persons have already listed their homes for sale in Kansas City and have been looking over houses here for their new residences.

On Friday night the Sedalia Zoning Board approved the rezoning of the area for the plant and this will be presented to the City Council for final approval Monday night. An option has already been secured on the plot and purchase will be made as soon as the rezoning is finally allowed and the money is on hand.

Voluntary investments have already been received to make up the first $25,000 of the $100,000 fund. These have included one note purchase of $2,500, several for $2,000 and a number of $1,000 investments.

Meeting at 7:30 a. m. Monday, the 50 men will work the business area that day. However, anyone who is missed and who wished to make an investment may do so by contacting the Chamber of Commerce Office.

Mike Giorkaris is director and Abe Silverman is chairman of the industrial activities committee of the C. of C. and will head the fund campaign.

FBI Seeks 3 In A Roundup Of Labor Kings

9 Arrests Follow Grand Jury Probe Of St. Louis Setup

ST. LOUIS, May 16—(AP)—With nine union officers already arrested on charges of violating the federal anti-racketeering statute, federal agents today sought three more AFL leaders, including Lawrence L. Callanan, controversial head of the steamfitters union here.

All 12 were named in indictments returned by a federal grand jury involved in a secrecy-shrouded inquiry into reported racketeering among labor unions in Eastern Missouri. The indictments originally were suppressed, but later the order was removed by Federal Judge George H. Moore.

Also sought by FBI agents are John L. (Doc) Lawler, business agent of the union headed by Callanan; and L. A. Thompson, business representative of the Teamsters and Chauffeurs Local No. 574 of Cape Girardeau.

Nine officials were arrested yesterday.

Callanan, an ex-convict and brother of former St. Louis sheriff Thomas F. Callanan, did not appear at his St. Louis County home last night. His home is illuminated at night by floodlights installed by Callanan as a protective measure. Police recently investigated a reported attempt on his life 20 months ago.

Lawler was an unsuccessful candidate for the Missouri Senate, opposing veteran State Senator Michael Kinney in the Democratic primary last August.

Thompson, former president of the Cape Girardeau Central Trades and Labor Union, has not been at his office there for three days.

Only Paul H. Hulahan, business agent for local 42, AFL International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union, is under direct police custody. He is held in lieu of $50,000 bond. The other eight are free under $25,000 bond.

Two were arrested at Seattle, Wash., when they arrived for a national union convention.

Maximum penalty for conviction on any of the counts in the indictments against the 12 labor leaders is 20 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

The grand jury began its inquiry three weeks ago and has heard some 60 witnesses, who were not identified. The jury now is recessed until May 26. The St. Louis Crime Commission requested the investigation after repeated efforts of labor shakedowns in this area.

Kill, Wound, Capture Huks On Luzon Island

MANILA (AP)—The army yesterday reported 32 Huk rebels were killed, 13 wounded, 31 captured and 46 surrendered in operations on Luzon Island the last few weeks.

The army said it lost six men killed and 14 wounded in the same period.

Train Kills A Woman Near Parkville, Mo.

PARKVILLE, May 16—(AP)—A young woman struck and killed by a Burlington railroad freight train near here last night was identified today as Miss Cecelia Tooley, 26, secretary to Z. L. Zwingle, president of Park College.

House Investigators Report GIs In Europe Lack Supplies

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—House investigators reported today Allied forces in Europe lack enough fuel and ammunition to fight, and they quoted one high officer as saying nothing is being done to improve the situation.

Defense of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will be "inadequate" until European nations "believe in, and are willing to organize and finance adequate logistic support supplies," said the report by a special House foreign affairs subcommittee.

European nations failed to provide enough money for logistics primarily because none of them had "any feeling that a Soviet attack was imminent," the report said.

Only the "presence, leadership and assistance of the United States," it added, prevents NATO "from becoming hopelessly bogged down."

The five-member group, after a two weeks' tour of France and Italy, recommended that "all foreign aid programs should be reviewed and evaluated" to determine if "they contribute materially to the defense of the United States."

Oil Tops The List

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, European commander, and his air chief, Gen. Lauris Norstad, were quoted as saying their "most immediate and pressing problem" is building up "stocks on the ground, particularly of petroleum, oil and lubricants and ammunition large enough to sustain operations of the forces in being."

The minimum stocks should be sufficient for 90 days' combat, the report said, adding:

"Canadian Air Vice Marshal Plant of Gen. Norstad's staff said that there are no stocks on the ground and nothing is being done to build them up."

"The morale of United States personnel was admittedly bad because of the lack of recreational facilities and poor living conditions," the report added.

"Responsible officers said that the United States airmen hated the French and that there was considerable resentment on the part of the French against the Americans."

It listed these other major problems as outlined by Ridgway:

1. Maintaining European reserve divisions at standard strength and training. These constitute about half of the 50-division NATO force, and the whole defense theory is based upon the swift availability of well-trained reserves.

West Germans Still Uncertain

2. Planning adequate defenses without knowing whether West German troops are to be included. European Parliaments, except that of Germany, have yet to ratify plans for the European army.

3. Stepping up construction of NATO airfields.

4. Training enough pilots. The total now is less than the standard of three pilots for every two planes.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wis), included Representatives Prouty (R-Vt), Morano (R-Conn), Church (R-Ill) and Burr P. Harrison (D-Va).

Trespassers Could Suffer Severe Fall At Stadium

Members of the Jennie Jaynes Lewis Foundation urge all persons to stay-off all construction work in the new football stadium area.

Many have climbed to the top of the stadium supports, which reach 20 feet in the air, and the danger of a severe fall is a distinct possibility.

Harrison Goes To See Clark On Truce Plan

MUNSAN, Sunday, May 17 (AP)—The top United Nations truce negotiator flies to Tokyo today for high-level conferences with Gen. Mark W. Clark, Allied Far East commander, at the start of a three-day recess in the bogged Korean armistice talks.

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., senior Allied delegate at Panmunjom asked for the recess Saturday for "administrative reasons."

He declined to elaborate nor would the U. N. Command say whether the recess was dictated by higher authority.

However, the recess and sudden conference with Clark indicated top-level governmental conferences probably were under way on "fundamental" differences with the Communists on handling the exchange of war prisoners.

Differing statements in recent days from leaders in Britain and India and from the U. S. State Department may have caused the United States to ask for a truce breathing spell to decide firmly the United Nations path.

The negotiations will resume Wednesday and any new Allied tack revealed then doubtless would still hew to the one major U. N. position—that no Korean War prisoner be forced to return home against his will.

Clark personally flew from Tokyo with the latest Allied counter-proposal on prisoner exchange earlier in the week. After consultations with President Syngman Rhee, president of the Republic of Korea and the U. N. negotiations taff, the Allied counter plan was unfolded. It met in part strenuous South Korean objections to an armistice which failed to unify the country.

The Allied counter-proposal called for an on-the-spot release of 34,000 North Korean prisoners who have said they would resist return to Communist rule. Only 14,500 Chinese prisoners would be turned over to the custody of a five-nation neutral commission for 60 days. Then if still refusing repatration these Chinese also would eligible for release.

Angrily North Korean Gen. Nam Il, head of the Communist truce team, turned down the proposal Thursday as "absurd" and declared it destroyed the basis of negotiations.

At a 67-minute meeting Saturday Nam repeatedly called on the Allies to withdraw the counter-proposal in order to restore the basis for further talks.

A Man Slightly Hurt When Hit By Car Here

E. P. O'Farrell, 2201 South Ohio, was accidently knocked to the pavement about 5:45 p. m. Saturday at Main and Osage by an automobile driven by Francis M. Ream, 1502 East 12th.

According to the report given the police by the driver of the car, as he was backing up to pull away from the curb, it brushed O'Farrell knocking him down. He was taken to the Bothwell Hospital by police, where it was reported he suffered slight bruises.

Ace Race Grows Hotter

Sabre Pilots Win Slashing Victory Over Enemy MIGs

SEOUL, Sunday, May 17—(AP)—Two Sabre sharpshooters, competing in a hot race to win the world's first triple jet ace rating, paced U. S. pilots Saturday in a blazing all-day shoot over Northwest Korea which the Fifth Air Force said cost the Communists 11 MIGs shot down and six damaged.

Capt. Manuel Fernandez of Miami, Fla., bagged his record-smashing 14th MIG Saturday afternoon after Capt. Joseph McConnell of Apple Valley, Calif., tied Fernandez' old mark of 13 in a morning sweep.

Back in the U. S., Fernandez was McConnell's gunnery instructor. They came to Korea together.

When their swept-wing Sabres swooshed in to landings from Saturday's flashing dogfights, Fernandez was one MIG away and McConnell two from the 15 kills that will give the world's first triple jet ace rating.

On the ground Saturday, Allied troops and artillery killed and wounded more than 1,500 of 4,000 Chinese attackers on the Central Front, the Eighth Army said. South Korean Capitol Division troops defending the vital Kumhwa-Kumsong supply road were credited with inflicting 1,143 of the Red casualties.

ROKs Trap 200

South Koreans drove out early Sunday in a two-pronged assault southeast of the Pukhan River and trapped 200 Chinese in horseshoe-shaped area.

Allied headquarters said the South Koreans recaptured two outposts southeast of Capitol Hill which they had lost in recent weeks. The ROKs swept within 10 yards of the crest of a third outpost hill.

A beefed-up company of Chinese defenders was trapped in the horseshoe between the three hills.

B-29 Superforts roared into Northwest Korea last night and slammed a heavy bombing attack at a big Communist supply center northwest of Sinanju.

Jabara Scores Again

In the big Saturday jet battles Maj. James Jabara of Wichita, Kan., first U. S. jet ace of the Korean War, bagged his first MIG since returning for a second tour of duty. The kill ran Jabara's string to seven MIGs shot down.

"It was burning like hell — a beautiful sight," he said.

How many MIGs went into action was not officially announced but Fernandez said that he and another pilot alone had 40 MIGs "cornered."

"There were Takusan (Japanese for many) that time," he exclaimed jubilantly.

The day-long air battles swirled over a triangle formed by Sinuiju, Sinanju and Kunu, known as MIG Alley. The bag of Red jets was the largest since Sabres shot down 13 last September.

Suggestive of the frenzied action, Marine Maj. John F. Bolt of Sanford, Fla., got so close to his MIG victim that the exploding Red craft showered fragments against Bolt's Sabre.

Hundreds of Allied planes pounded North Korea in clear spring weather. Thunderjet fighter-bombers breached a dam on the Chasan Reservoir north of Pyongyang, loosing tons of water which washed out a railroad bridge and supply highway.

US To Remove Trade Bans On Czechs

Washington Hails Release Of Oatis With Quick Move

WASHINGTON, May 16—(AP)—The State Department indicated today that trade and travel restrictions imposed on Communist Czechoslovakia as a result of the imprisonment of AP Correspondent William Oatis will be lifted, now that Oatis has been freed.

Official Washington hailed the American reporter's release as welcome news, but there was disagreement in a congressional quarters as to whether it marked any significant turn in the cold war.

President Eisenhower, cruising off Virginia aboard the yacht Williamsburg, was quoted by his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, as being "highly pleased" about the news of Oatis' release.

A State Department statement said: "The department of course, is greatly pleased by the release of Mr. Oatis from the incarceration which this government felt from the outset was a gross injustice."

We Reconsider

"We have imposed certain sanctions as a result of Oatis' imprisonment. With his release we are now in position to give consideration to the removal of those restrictions."

The restrictions were these:

1. A barrier to Czech exports to the United States, which had been running as high as 20 million dollars a year.

2. A ban on all exports from the United States to Czechoslovakia.

3. A policy against travel to Czechoslovakia by any American not on essential official business.

4. A ban against flights of Czech commercial planes over the U. S. zone of Germany. With British and French co-operation, this cut off Czech flights over all of West Germany.

White said, however, that "there wasn't any deal" on the part of this government for Oatis' release.

At Bonn, German officials said Czechoslovakia can now expect the return of an airliner commandeered by a group of anti-Communist Czechs and flown to West Germany March 23. Six of the 29 people aboard the plane chose to remain in the West, while the others were sent back. The plane itself was held for negotiations on what American diplomats called "unsettled questions."

While Congress members welcomed the Oatis release, few saw in it any real indication of a change in Communist tactics. Senators generally appeared inclined to go along with the State Department in considering the removal of the economic sanctions.

What Oatis' release, there arose new demands for the liberation of John Hvasta, 26, of Hilside, N. J., who was imprisoned by the Czechs on "spy" charges almost five years ago.

Hvasta, a former sailor who was working at the U. S. consulate in Prague when arrested, was reported to have escaped from his cell last year but his present whereabouts is not known.

The story of Oatis' release will be found on page 2

Garden Club Council Pleases Crowd With Its Flower Show

The Sedalia Garden Club Council flower show sparkled with "Jewels of the Garden" Saturday at the Smith-Cotton Cafeteria. Although the members of the club worried for fear they would not have enough flowers to make a showing they presented one of the most beautiful shows yet.

The cafeteria, with its glass block windows added much to the picture of beauty and color. Imagination in arrangements and the artistic ability of the flower growers brought admiration from the crowds of people during the afternoon and evening.

In the center of the room were tables placed in the shape of a cut gem and in the center in glittering letters were: "Jewels of the Garden", the theme of the show. Each table in the center held arrangements of flowers the color of some gem, the sapphire, topaz, ruby, turquoise, amethyst, jade and emerald and moonstone.

Tables spread in all directions and on these were horticulture, with new and old varieties, common and rare specimen, big and little and of all colors.

Some of the spring flowers, such as the tulips were still hanging on to give the touch of spring to the show and there were flowers that will bloom in mid-summer.

Big red poppies soared high over tiny violas, sweet rockets, larkspur, columbine, and even a Jack-in-the-pulpit. The old-fashioned bleeding hearts and new and old varieties of iris.

Several tables held house plants, african violets, and vines.

The fisherman idea was carried out by women who put their flowers, their containers and their ideas together in clever arrangements even to the extent of having tiny fish swimming around.

Sentiment and beauty combined in arrangements of flowers by candlelight and the division of inspiration and aspiration produced unique arrangements in which even small green bananas were used.

Arrangements from roadside material showed works of art, the flower and madonna combinations gave the sacred touch, the gay little Floradora with their big flowered hats and the flamingo group all attracted attention.

The Junior Garden Clubs had an exhibit brought smiles to the faces of those looking over the show. Vegetable dolls and one of them riding in a canoe made out of a cucumber. The center of the table had three tiers of arrangements in the center topped with a vase of iris in May pole effect and all around were dolls with pansy faces.

Each Garden Club decorated a table for the show carrying out the idea of the birthstone of the month, and the tables were in a setting of glass blocks and crepe paper roping.

Horiculture judges were—Mrs. A. B. Cowley, chairman, and Mrs. F. J. Chapel, both of Jefferson City, and Mrs. W. M. Pope of Eldon; arrangement—Mrs. Dale Atterbury, chairman, Mrs. B. E. Woolery and Mrs. R. H. Ohlson, all of Camdenton; junior division—Mrs. A. A. Ferguson, and Mrs. Wilford Acker, Sedalia.

Results of the judging will be found on page 15, column 3.

Oklahoma Opens Turner Turnpike

STROUD, Okla., May 16—(AP)—The Turner Turnpike, a four-lane superhighway connecting Oklahoma City and Tulsa, opened today with motorists paying from $1.40 to $4 for the 88-mile drive.

The long-awaited toll road, built at a cost of about 38-million dollars, parallels U. S. Highway 66 between the two cities. Along the route are Chandler, Stroud, Bristow and Sapulpa.

Cutting ribbons officially to open the highway were Gov. Johnston Murray and former Gov. Roy J. Turner. Turner first conceived a toll road solution to part of the state's traffic problem and sponsored the bill in the legislature six years ago.

An estimated 4,000 persons attended the opening day ceremonies under threatening skies. However, rain which had been falling earlier stopped in time for the show.

The Weather

Cloudy Sunday with thundershowers; Sunday night diminishing showers west, thundershowers east, cooler west; Monday partly cloudy and cooler with occasional showers extreme east, northerly winds; highs Sunday 60-65 north to 70s south.

Oatis Freed By Czechs After 2 Years

By The Associated Press

William N. Oatis came back to freedom today and said "I feel great" despite two years in a Prague prison.

The AP correspondent—jailed in Czechoslovakia because he wrote the truth about the Communist regime—received a pardon from President Antonin Zapotocky. U. S. officials drove him to West Germany. It was expected he would return within a day or two to the United States and a reunion with his wife. It was Mrs. Oatis' poignant appeal for her husband's release that led the Czech president to grant the pardon. Zapotocky said in a statement broadcast from Prague.

Oatis was under a 10-year sentence.

He was asked at the Czech-German border how he had been treated in the hands of the Czech authorities.

"Well they treated me pretty good, but it's great to be out!" Oatis responded. The lanky correspondent was pale.

Oatis, an Indianan now 39 years old, was sentenced by a Prague court in 1951 on charges of espionage after a trial the U. S. government quickly labeled as a travesty of justice.

Mrs. Oatis, at her home in St. Paul, Minn., meanwhile was "grateful, delighted and exhausted." She had been up most of the night awaiting further details, after the first bare announcement that Czech authorities were giving her husband a pardon.

The appeal she sent last November to Klement Gottwald, then president of Czechoslovakia, was disclosed last night when the news of the pardon became known. She put her heart into the 250-word letter.

"Surely," she said, "you must heed a simple plea for mercy and put an end to this bitterly unhappy situation in which my husband William and I are entrapped.

"We married because we wanted to spend our lives together. Yet the days go by, one after another, and so does the time we would be spending together. We can never regain what has already been lost during this past two and a half years, but I continue to hope and pray . . ."

There was no explanation why the Prague officials waited exactly six months to act on the letter, but in the meantime Gottwald died and Antonin Zapotocky became President of Czechoslovakia. In the meantime, also, Moscow launched a "peace offensive," and persuaded North Korean authorities to release groups of American, British and French civilians who had been seized in Korea at the start of the war there.

It is now almost three years since Mrs. Oatis saw her husband. That was four months after she and the reporter from Marion, Ind., were married. Oatis is now 39. A U. S. official permitted to visit him last October reported him in apparent good health.

"I still can't make myself believe it," Mrs. Oatis said last night at her St. Paul (Minn.) home. "Is there any when or how?"

Walter Bedell Smith, U. S. undersecretary of state, explained details were still to come, and Laurabelle Oatis observed:

"I'm so very, very grateful."

Moscow's announcement was printed on the foreign news page of Pravda. It said:

"The Czechoslovak News Agency reports that by a decision of the Czechoslovak Republic William Oatis has been amnestied. Oatis is a citizen of the United States and a former correspondent of the Associated Press in Prague. William Oatis on July 4, 1951, was exposed by the State Court in Prague for espionage and other anti-state activities and was sentenced to deprival of freedom for 10 years.

"In November, 1952, the wife of the sentenced person, L. Oatis, through the Czechoslovak Embassy in Washington, sent a letter to the president of the Czechoslovak Republic with a request for pardoning W. Oatis. As stated in the report of the Czechoslovak News Agency, the president of the republic has satisfied this request."

First, fragmentary word of the pardon came shortly before 7 p.m. EST Friday when Reuters News Agency intercepted a Communist broadcast. Almost two hours later the Saturday edition of Pravda became available in Moscow, and the AP Bureau there flashed its announcement. Just before 10 p.m. the State Department said it was advised by George Wadsworth, U. S. ambassador at Prague, of the pardon.

The State Department had made frequent appeals for Oatis to the Czech government, and Mrs. Oatis said she is "extremely grateful to those in the State Department and The Associated Press who have been so helpful and understanding during these trying months."

Red Cross Notes—

Local Chapter Participates In Armed Forces Day Fete

The Pettis County Chapter of the Red Cross participated in the observance of Armed Forces Day at the Sedalia Air Force Base last Saturday. Mrs. Henry Menefee, co-chairman of the blood program, and Mrs. C. W. Matheison, member of the motor group, set up a booth at the base. Together with two volunteers from the Johnson County Chapter, they took registrations for the next visit of the mobile blood unit which will be June 5 and 6.

This time the unit will be at the Smith-Cotton cafeteria. Maurice Hogan made the posters for the booth, which were very attractive and effective.

Members of the motor group were busy the past week assisting in the Red Cross swimming program. Mrs. C. A. Wright and Mrs. J. C. McLaughlin, co-chairmen, delivered swimming registration cards, and a film, "Learning to Swim," to all the schools in Sedalia. The film was the educational stimulus to the swimming program, and was made at Silver Springs, Fla. More than 1200 students saw the film.

The Liberty Park pool will open May 30, with Kenneth Cordry as supervisor. The Red Cross swimming classes will begin June 23, and continue for six weeks. Don Gray will be the Red Cross instructor, with life guards on duty. The schedule for Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday mornings will be as follows: 9-10 a.m., 12 years and over; 10-11 a.m. 8 and 9 years; 11-12 a.m., 10 and 11 years.

Swimming cards were mailed to all the town schools in the county for distribution as well as all the Sedalia schools. When completed, the cards are to be turned in at the Red Cross office, 112 West Fourth. There is no charge for these lessons, and no pool fee during the above hours.

Mrs. Albert Wright, a member of the motor group, took the two Junior Red Cross members, Nancy Oswald and Linville Doan of Green Ridge, to Unity Farm, near Kansas City, where they attended the Junior Red Cross Training Center.

Yankee Civilian Dogs In Dog House In Japan

By Edward R. Kennedy
NEA Special Correspondent

TOKYO — The caste system has been extended to the canine class in Japan. Ask any dog belonging to a civilian employe of the U. S. Air Force Materiel command here.

Unlike dogs belonging to an Air Force family, a civilian employe's dog is not entitled to live like people. It must live from now on in a dog house.

It may not curl up on the foot of the master's bed, romp with the children in the living room or hopefully nuzzle the meat en route to the refrigerator. Its master's house is off limits.

It must have a home of its own, built according to specifications, graded according to size and approved according to military standards.

These standards are understood to take into account litters of uncertain heredity. A small terrier-type puppy, for instance, qualifies for a small Type A house, but if genes from a mastiff ancestor develop in his dogdom, the owner must construct a large Type B house.

This regulation has actually been in effect since 1950, but only recently has it been enforced by eviction notices for a number of house-kept dogs that didn't get around to reading the small print.

For the "civilian" dogs, the Materiel Command directed a Japanese architect-employe to design a dog house that, in its finalized form, would make a Stateside Rover roll over with delight.

Blueprints are available to any civilian employe pet owner, thru the billeting office, of course.

With typical thoroughness, the military plans include two different sizes of pet abodes, with five elevations of each carefully detailed.

First is the Type A blueprint "For Pet." It specifies a 20x24-inch door and a six-square-foot inside floor area. A small dog obviously has room for overnight guests.

A rear window, but no drapes or shades, is required, and lumber at least 2x2 is regulation for construction, comparing most favorably with general home building for the Japanese. The dog house itself is thoughtfully set several inches off the ground.

Type B is intended "For Large Dogs." This one should accomodate pets ranging from a St. Bernard to Seabiscuit with no trouble.

It has a 14-square-foot area with a generous doorway 26 inches wide and 30 inches high. Naturally, the picture window in the rear somewhat larger, but the sloped roof, swept-wing roof style architecture is otherwise the same as for smaller animals.

Blueprints for the official division of dogdom were prepared by a USAF-employed architect and draftsman, then approved by a lieutenant colonel. On the plan sheet there is extra space allotted for revision data — which undoubtedly on later versions will include a specified area where "civilian" dogs may bury bones.

Lafayette Dollar Only One of That Value Ever Issued

By Bill Hert

Of the more than 100 commemorative coins issued by the United States, the Lafayette dollar is the only one of that denomination.

This was the third commemorative coin of this country, although souvenir money had been popular with other countries for centuries. The first in America were the Columbian half dollar of 1892 and 1893 and the Isabella quarter of 1893, both issued in connection with the worlds fair in Chicago.

The dollar commemorated the erection, in 1900, during the Paris Exposition, of a monument to General Lafayette, gift of the American people. Pennies donated by American school children comprised about $50,000 of the cost and sale of the souvenir dollars at $2 each also provided funds for the monument.

The heads side of the dollar has the likenesses of Lafayette and President Washington, with an equestrian statue of Lafayette on the other side. Although monument commission members wanted the coins delivered in 1899, they asked that the dollars be dated 1900. Mint officials said it was contrary to practice to issue predated coins. They got around this with wording in the inscription; "Erected by the youth of the United States....1900" The issue of 50,026 dollars was struck in one day on an old coining press at the rate of 80 per minute. The first coin struck was sent to President McKinley who in turn gave it to the president of the French Republic.

Like other commemorative coins, the Lafayette dollar is in demand among collectors only when in uncirculated or new condition. Dealers and collectors pay $8 to $10 for this coin in this condition, but it brings only $3 to $5 when showing signs of wear or handling.

Summer Blues

By Mrs. F. E. Helman
Member of Green Ridge Garden Club.

We will think of this topic as it refers to blue color, and blue flowers in our gardens; rather than in the light of any inference it might have to our feelings, — when along about midsummer our gardening enthusiasm begins to wane; and the heat, the drought, and the insects help to take the starch out of our early spring pep. This type of summer blues we prefer not to consider.

Blue is one of the 3 Primary colors — and — we might mention —is usually the last named; i. e.— we say the Primary Colors are red, yellow, blue. Red, the strongest, being named first, and blue — the less stimulating, more restful color — being named last. In thinking of color in relation to our gardens, I believe we would be safe in saying that we usually think of it from the standpoint of beauty alone. But there are elements in color which bring other re-actions than those brought to our visions. It is not a new discovery that sick people — exposed to certain colors — are affected definitely by them: some produce a favorable re-action, others un-favorable. Workers in certain phases of photography are affected both mentally and physically by the color of the light under which, it is necessary for them to work. It is not unusual for those who work continually under red light to become so irritable and quarrelsome, that it becomes necessary to remove them to a "blue" room until they become normal. Animals and insects, too, react unmistakably to colors. Butterflies prefer mauve and lavender. And they have shown their preference to such an extent for these colors in the blossoms of the Buddlea Bush, that it has come to be called Butterfly Bush. Bees prefer blue, and are known to be more cross to anyone wearing red near their hives. Red and yellow are the best deterrents for insects. Since illumination is poor thru red bulbs, we can see why yellow bulbs have come to be used at night where insects are a problem. I'm sure we are all familiar with the belief that bulls are infuriated by red.

Nature gave us the reds and yellows as stimulants. We have them in the sunrise and sunset colors, in flowers, and in the autumn colors. But in the restful colors, blue, green, and violet, she gave us the common everyday setting of our lives — the sky — the trees — the sea — the distance. It did not just happen that there are so many more of these colors; we need more of their quieting influence. Since blue is the opposite of the stimulating red — could this, when carried to extremes, be the origin of the phrase "having the blues"? A complete let down of our spirits usually does end in a season of "blues". Then there was an old wives tradition that blue flowers would allay fever and cool the blood — the belief growing of course from the quieting influence of their blue color. So, if we were planning a flower garden for the nervous and high strung, for the tired business executive, or for any who need a quiet, restful retreat, there is definitely a place for blue flowers. They contribute more than meets the eye.

There are comparatively few truly blue flowers; i.e., having the sky blue of the Anchusa, or the Baby-blue of the for-get-me-not. But there are so many tones and shades that give that cool blue aspect and feeling, that I'm sure we will not be criticized if we drift into the blue-violets, the lavender blues, or gray blues. Blue flowers where the red begins to be dominant and the color verges into magenta or purple are not classed as blue.

If we have been observant of color in relation to the seasons, we are aware that certain colors predominate at certain seasons. In the early spring a majority of the flowers are yellow. So, in our search for blue flowers, the spring picture will find them in the minority. It is natural to look to the bulb family for any early blues, for how else, except thru bulbs, could all preparation for flowering be made so early? By late March and on thru April, we may have the beautiful blue of the Scilla, comonly known as Squill, or Wild Hyacinth. Also that bulbous plant Muscari — or Grape Hyacinth; and the Chionodoxa or "Glory of the Snow". These bulbous plants are of the easiest of culture, and multiply naturally by off-sets. By late April we may expect the Myo-so'-tio, better known as Forget-me-not, to add a blue splash to the flower border. It is a perennial herb — and comes in either a dwarf variety, combining well with pansies, or a tall variety —up to 18" high. Also by late April we may have delightful blue flowers from the Mertensia — also, a perennial herb — better known as Va. blue bells, or Va. Cowslip. Of course the buds are pink, but the contrast makes a charming combination with the blue flowers. Some of you may have this Va. Cowslip — as I have — from its wild state.

In May, we may look forward to the easy to grow perennial called Anchusa, also known as Bugloss and summer forget-me-not. The clumps are of coarse, hairy foliage, the bloom stalks from 1½-5 ft. tall, the small forget-me-not flowers of intense blue shades. The plant pays little attention to drought or cold, which helps pay for its tendency to droop and sprawl over the ground.

Linum, or flax — is an annual that has its place in the summer garden; the flowers are light and airy, adding charm to the garden picture, but not suitable for cutting.

Salvia is another garden ornamental, but the pleasure from its heavenly blue color is somewhat dimmed by its frail, slender stems —too weak to support themselves, and staking seems to take away from its grace. It comes in both annual and perennial form.

Every one knows the blue Centaurea — another annual — more often known as Corn flower or Blue-Bottle. The Campanula is a genus of both bi-ennial and perennial herbs, commonly known as Bell-flower, and one species is the well-known Canterbury Bell. Altho it is found in most of the Pastel colors, the blue one and its variations are very charming.

Truly the Iris was well named when it was called the Rainbow flower. Besides belonging to one of the largest and most important garden plant families, it also boasts one of the widest color ranges;— truly has every hue of the rainbow, and many combinations. While many of the blues are combined with markings of other colors, yet the picture produced by the tall stately Iris in the varying shades of blue is indeed a striking one. It is a sturdy grower, fully deserving the popularity it enjoys. And while no modest gardener can hope to keep abreast of the ever increasing offerings of new Iris, any June garden that boasts even a few has added beauty and dignity to its garden picture. Who of us does not know and admire the intense blue of the Spiderwort, with its strange 3 cornered blossoms? Or the rich blue of the Platycodon, or Balloon flower?

But of all the blues we have considered, we are probably all agreed that the pride and joy of the summer flower garden is its Delphinium. True, it is not only a blue flower, for through hybridization, it is now found in all shades and tints, from white, thru the blues — the violets — purple, lavender, pink, mauve and lilac. But the tall, branched, spires of blossoms, thru the true blue shades, make a picture never-to-be-forgotten. Types have been improved during the past 20 yrs. until we now have bloom spikes reaching 6 or 7 ft. above the ground, with many side branches of good size. They are considered fairly easy of culture, still there are a few necessary rules. First: they like sunshine and a free circulation of air. For this reason, the larger types should not be set closer than 2 ft. apart. Next: they like a rich soil, and an application of liquid fertilizer is recommended waile the stalks are growing. They do not like a hard, baked soil, so keep soil about them stirred. And they like an alkaline or sweet soil, which can be produced by the addition of lime. Three-four ozs. of staked lime to the sq. yd. of surface is recommended. Listed as perennials, most delphinium are considered short-lived — 3 or 4 yrs. at best. The formossum variety, which comes in shades of lavender and dark blue, is considered to have the longest life. And if cut back after 1st blossoming, may flower again in Sept. The Pacific giants, one of the many Hybrid forms, while strikingly beautiful, are likely to be biennial, especially in our warmer sections. The Belladonna type, with light blue blossoms, is lower growing, and does not so often require staking.

Now, we have considered blue color — both from a psychological standpoint, and from the standpoint of its beauty. Appealing as the color is to everyone, I wonder, would we continue to enjoy a border or garden planned entirely of blue flowers? We often hear of gardens or borders being worked out after some definite color scheme — as a gold garden — a white garden — a blue garden. I am sure it would be quite an achievement to succeed in such a plan — but from the standpoint of beauty alone, I wonder if we have not sacrificed something. Would such a garden tend to become monotonous? If you were having the blues, would a blue garden give your spirits the needed lift? Blue flowers are loved, but it seems to me their blue becomes more telling, more purely blue, by the addition of a complimentary color. Not in equal amounts, lest there again be monotony. As an illustration: Let the bed of blue delphinium be accented occasionally with madonna lilies; or place a few bright yellow or orange nasturtiums here and there among the Larkspur and Anchusa: Or have clumps of pink Peonies with blue Canterbury bells or Iris. We seem to need the stimulating effect of these bright colors. And the ever present green foliage has a softening effect over the whole picture.

There is an old saying, that one flower does not make spring; or one swallow does not make a summer; May we go a step farther and say, one color does not make a perfect flower picture. When we plan our flower borders, do we not plan with a mental picture, well balanced in color, and framed by nature's own greenery? We need a harmonious blending of colors for the most satisfying results. If we succeed in achieving this, we feel we have had a part in the beauty of creation.

Another 2,536 homes and 1,146 other buildings were damaged.

The damage figures included the blows at Waco and San Angelo, Tex., last Monday in which 123 persons were killed.

The organization said 2,340 families were affected, either by death, injury or property damage in the areas.

The Red Cross said it assigned 110 national staff members to aid local volunteers in the stricken areas. Fifty-six were assigned to Waco alone.

The Red Cross handled more than 5,000 inquiries from relatives and friends of persons living in the Texas storm areas.

Other states in which tornadoes struck during the period were Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and Arkansas.

Korean Truce Talks Recess To Wednesday

MUNSAN (AP)—The Korean armistice talks recessed until Wednesday at Allied insistence today after another stormy exchange over U. N. and Communist proposals to end the long prisoner exchange deadlock.

The Communists angrily accused U N. negotiators of destroying the "basis" of the negotiations and called on them to "withdraw this absurd proposal."

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., charged the Reds with trying "to coerce unwilling prisoners to return to unwanted masters."

Harrison said he asked for the three-day recess for "administrative reasons." He declined to elaborate.

Observers pointed out the recess would provide an opportunity for top-level conferences at a time when criticism of the U. S. position is building up among friendly nations.

The U. S. State Department Friday night took the unusual step of issuing a formal statement defending the "fundamental humanitarian principle" of letting prisoners of the Korean war choose whether they will go home.

There can be no compromise, the State Department said in the statement apparently aimed at critics at home and abroad.

The department said every possibility for an honorable truce will be explored, but there can be no agreement which would condemn some prisoners to "indefinite captivity."

Salvation Army Worker Tells Of Prayer as PW

LONDON (AP) — Salvation Army Commissioner Herbert A. Lord told Saturday how he defied with prayers an atheistic North Korean Communist with a gun—and won.

Commissioner Lord, one of a group of British civilians recently repatriated by Communists, told the story in the Salvation Army magazine "War Cry."

"Do you believe there is a God?" demanded the guard.

"Yes," replied the commissioner firmly.

"You are an intelligent educated man and yet you really believe there is a God?"

"Yes."

"And do you believe that this God answers prayer?"

"Yes."

"Well, we'll prove it. I am going to stand behind you and I want you to pray to your God and ask him to tell you in which hand I am holding this gun."

"I refuse to offer such a prayer—God is not a conjurer."

"And yet you believe he answers prayer?"

"Yes, and I am praying now."

"For what?"

"That he will give me grace not to lose my temper with you, and that if you decide to use your gun I may die like a Christian gentleman."

Commissioner Lord wound up his story:

"The Korean guard was silent and walked slowly away, leaving a greatly-relieved internee."

Bohling Hogs Top Kansas City Market

Charles Bohling of Smithton trucked 10 Hampshire hogs to the Kansas City market on May 15 which averaged 230 pounds and which John Clay and Co., his commission firm, sold for him at $24.85 per cwt. This price was not only highest paid for hogs there since July of 1950, but was 60 cents above the top paid by the local packers that day.

An unusual fact was that the highest price paid for cattle there during the entire week was $24 and that only for a small lot of prime light weight steers. The Bohling hogs were sold on a special order and went to the west coast for slaughter.

Explanatory leaflets will be distributed to school pupils early this week, and season ticket sales will follow the latter part of the week. Tickets for the entire series of 12 shows will be $1, taxes included, and will be available throughout the school system as well as at the Fox Theatre, for the remainder of the month.

Individual tickets purchased at the box-office from week-to-week will be 25c, with "no adults admitted unless accompanied by children". Parent committees from the endorsing organizations will chaperon each unit of the series, and committee members will assist in ticket distribution, working with school principals and teachers.

The visual recreation committee selected a panel of motion pictures from the approved Children's Library of Films, and from this panel the final booking selections will be chosen. "Yearling", in technicolor, starring Gregory Peck, Jane Wyman and Claude Jarman Jr., has been announced as the first selection of the June 17 movie.

"The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and "Hills of Home," a Lassie picture in technicolor, have also been confirmed for showing later in the series, and the balance of the movies will be of the same calibre and appeal.

Don King Disputes Movie Title, Sends Flowers to Theatre

"No Time For Flowers," the comedy drama that delightfully kids Communism and offers merry proof to Americans that the niceties and many of the necessities, too, are important in our everyday, red, white and blue living, is now showing at the Fox.

But Don King of Archias' Floral Company doesn't think much of the title—he believes in flowers—at all times—so he sent the cashiers at the Fox corsages and the men boutonnieres.

The picture, with Viveca Lindfors co-starred with Paul Christian and with one of the finest supporting casts ever assembled, gallops gaily along to the conclusion that when people are in love flowers and traditional trappings of courtship are more important than canned and other comestibles.

Franklin was driving east on Sixth and Wilson was headed south on Harrison, both cars being driven at a slow speed, Mrs. Glasgow reported.

Singer Sewing Contest Here For Girls 12-17

Local seamstresses, from age 12 to 17 inclusive, will compete for a new Singer slant-needle sewing machine and scores of other prizes valued at $534.50 by proving their skills in a Junior Dress making Contest, it was announced here today by Dallis Birky, manager of the Singer Sewing Center at 514 South Ohio.

The contest, starting May 18, is open to girls in the Sedalia area exclusively. "To win the top prizes, entrants do not have to compete with thousands of girls all over the nation," Birky states. "And all entrants can make garments of their choice to their own measurements. Tailored suits and coats are the sole exceptions," he added.

Judging will be done at three levels with first and second prizes to be awarded at each, he explained. Girls enrolled in classes in the local Singer Center will be eligible to compete for prizes and take part in a fashion show after Sept. 12, the contest's closing date.

The top entry from each sewing center will again be judged to pick the best two at the district level where additional prizes will be awarded. Winning district entries will be judged again to pick regional winners. The top award is the world's newest sewing machine, the Singer slant-needle in the Raymond Loewy designed spinet cabinet and stool. The combination sell for $347.50. Second place winner will receive the Singer featherweight portable sewing machine and table; a $182 value. First and second place winners in the districts will receive sewing cabinets and first place winners in the Sewing Center will be given a set of matched scissors with a fitted sewing box for the runner-up.

Judging of all garments will be based on co-ordination of design and fabric, construction and workmanship, fitting, and finishing.

Rules and entry blanks are available at Singer Sewing Center located at 514 South Ohio.

The patrols will "explore" a new found "planet," and during their wanderings come upon problems that will require knowledge of scoutcraft skills.

Warrensburg Holds Man for Confidence Racket 2 Years Ago

WARRENSBURG (AP)—An elderly man who gave his name as F. Morrison is serving a 30 day jail sentence here for a confidence racket he worked in small towns two years ago.

He was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. Prosecuting Attorney John Mittendorf said Morrison appeared in Holden, Mo., two years ago, represented himself as an advance man for a carnival. He said he sold advertising, collected the money and left town. No carnival appeared.

Sheriff Alex Nichols said some Holden persons recognized him when he appeared there again this week. He was specifically accused of obtaining $10 under false pretenses from John Curtis of Holden.

Morrison denied the charge. Magistrate M. D. Aber fined him $50 and sentenced him to serve 30 days in jail.

Hal Boyle's Column—

Tribute to Ministers, Who Give Much for Mighty Cause

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, (AP) — Suppose this Sunday every church in America were locked and the front door bore this sign:

"Going out of business. Building for sale or rent. The minister isn't mad at anybody. He simply has decided to enter a field offering more opportunity for advancement."

Well, you can imagine what would happen. There would be the greatest religious revival in the nation's history. You never love anything so much as when you are afraid you'll lose it.

At first everybody would simply be angry with the ministers.

"They must be crazy," people would say. "What's the matter with them anyway? They get paid for what they do."

The regular church-goers would cluster restlessly around the locked doors, then go back home, restless and uneasy. The Sabbath golfers would shout indignantly at their wives: "The kids have to be able to go to Sunday school. It's good for them. I guess you'll have to read them something out of the Bible today, until we get this thing straightened out. There must be a Bible around here somewhere."

And of course, the angriest of all would be the people who rarely or never attend their church, and don't even know the pastor's first name.

Then delegation after delegation would call at the homes of the ministers and say stormily:

"All right, if it's more money you want—how much."

But if all the ministers still stayed away from their churches, the delegations would cease to bluster, and plead fearfully:

"You have to come back. You can't do this. Who is going to marry us, baptize our children, bury us when we are dead, and give hope to those we leave behind?"

And the ministers might answer:

"We are weary of simply marrying you, baptizing your children, burying you and consoling your survivors. And it isn't a question of getting more take-home pay either. We will open the churches again only if you will promise to live up to your religion in your daily life and then live up to that promise."

And when the churches did reopen their doors they would be as crowded as a real estate office in the Florida land boom. At least for a few Sundays.

I suppose every minister has had a daydream of that kind at some time or other. And while I am not advocating a nation-wide sit-down strike for ministers, it certainly would stir up a mighty interest in religion—and a little overdue appreciation for the parson.

A minister gives up a great deal for a mighty cause. In wartime a good chaplain is often as much of a hero as any frontline doughboy. In peace he must show a finer, quieter bravery, with no medals to win and only the crying bugle in his own spirit to cheer him on.

His mere act of dedication places him apart, and makes him sometimes lonely. But like any other human being he is subject to discouragement and frustration. The time other men save for their family life he must always put at the disposal of his congregation.

Every minister wants to build one new church in his lifetime. But usually this is neither vanity nor the urge to spend money. If he has to build a bigger church, he knows he has succeeded—he has brought more people to the practice of their faith than were there when he first came.

This is his opportunity for advancement—his only real one. For this is his ultimate consolation, the proof that he has not failed in his dedication—he has led many to the worship of the Lord he serves.

And like any other fisherman he yearns most for the ones that got away.

Senators Hear New Attacks On SPA Funds

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee has heard new attacks on House action virtually wiping out the Southwestern Power Administration's continuing fund.

Clyde Ellis, executive manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, asserted that the House reduction for the fund from $3,736,000 to $150,000 would wreck the power purchase and interchange arrangement of six rural electric generation and transmission companies.

These companies, he said yesterday, supply power to 42 distribution cooperatives which in turn serve over one million farm families in Oklahoma and Missouri.

Ellis particularly assailed a letter written by Frank M. Wilkes, president of the Southwestern Gas and Electric Co., of Shreveport, La. to Rep. Jensen (R—Iowa), chairman of the House Interior Department Appropriations subcommittee.

Wilkes said in the letter that if the continuing fund request was reduced that no REA, municipality or individual would have any disruption of service.

Wilkes added that power companies in the area would "diligently pursue" negotiations with SPA for distribution of power to preferred customers of the government.

"This letter constitutes the usual big lie of the power companies in presenting this situation to congress," Ellis declared.

Real name of Coco, famed Barnum and Bailey circus clown, was George Hubert Herbert. He was a native of Calcutta, India, and joined circus life at the age of three.

DOC BOB, YOUR DRY CLEANER, SEZ:

"LEATHER IS IN THE FASHION NEWS!"

"NO. 1 OF A SERIES"

Fashion designers are taking leather out of the realm of sportswear—they are showing it in stunning, smart town and evening fashions—it is also being used quite widely as trim on garments, in novel combinations with many different types of fabrics.

Perhaps you've wondered why so many drycleaners raise their eyebrows when you take a leather or leather-trimmed garment to them for cleaning—why, some cleaners do not even handle these specialty items, while others have very fine leather departments.

THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF DRYCLEANING says the story goes like this: Drycleaning of leathers takes a particular type of skill. It is entirely different from the cleaning of textile wearing apparel and household items.

Long-continued overdosing, with products intended only for overnight laxative relief, can lead to serious lifelong suffering. Since constipation is probably the most widespread of all human maladies, you owe it to yourself to read the following statement.*

(signed) KELLOGG COMPANY
Battle Creek, Michigan

* * *

Since the turn of the century, this nation's health progress has been nothing short of remarkable.

Twenty years or more have been added to the average American life-expectancy at birth.

Death rates from specific diseases such as pneumonia and tuberculosis, have been cut—some almost to the vanishing point.

The general level of nutrition has risen year after year.

What is hard to understand is how—despite all this enormous health progress—a seemingly simple ailment like Constipation could be so widespread that according to competent medical authorities, at least 70% of our total population, from time to time, suffer from constipation in one form or another.

* * *

Is the prevalence of constipation—occasional, common or chronic—due to lack of medical research, progress and knowledge on the subject? Far from it.

On the contrary, nature and the medical profession—separately and together—have provided man with a vast array of remedies, treatment and even prevention.

But by and large, constipation is not a "ready-made" condition that strikes without warning; it is a progressive ailment.

—AND THE PROGRESS OF CONSTIPATION, FROM OCCASIONAL TO COMMON TO CHRONIC, IS HASTENED TO A WIDELY UNREALIZED EXTENT BY THE WAY THE DIGESTIVE SYSTEM IS ABUSED WITH PURGATIVES TOO HARSH IN IMMEDIATE EFFECT TO HAVE A SOUND CORRECTIVE RESULT.

When continual abuse is accompanied by not enough exercise, tension of modern living, and today's steady diet of processed food lacking in natural bulk . . . then it is little wonder that some degree of constipation, sooner or later, is almost inevitable.

* * *

Few people indeed are ever aware what damage can take place inside them, when without medical guidance—without even reading the directions on the label—they choose a laxative at random and take "big doses" willy-nilly.

This continual overdosing, instead of the careful therapeutic dose designed only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage, can exert upon the delicate digestive system a strain nature never intended. The fact that thousands unknowingly abuse themselves for years in this manner, without apparent harm, merely demonstrates that the human digestive system can stand unbelievable abuse.

Sooner or later the vicious "laxative habit" takes hold.

And before they realize it, their condition has progressed so far that even daily laxative or purgative dosing can no longer bring satisfactory, comfortable relief.

These men and women tried to substitute harsh purgative "forcing action," for the natural regularity which sensible daily habits and sufficient bulk in the diet could probably have maintained . . . if only they had "let nature take its course."

Let us see what happens inside the digestive system, when it is churned up by unnatural purgative over-dosing.

1. Most purgative compounds, designed for fast overnight relief, must depend on: (a) mechanical action which loads the lower intestine (colon) with a flood of water; or (b) "irritant" action which, with certain chemical ingredients, prods bowel walls into muscular contraction.
2. Obviously, these compounds draw off water from the system and rush it through the intestines; thus also drawing off fluids and juices needed for normal digestion, and vitamins and minerals from the food you have eaten.
3. The chemical action of these compounds, when they reach the colon, often further irritates an already over-sensitive intestinal tract. It tightens and becomes tense.
4. RESULT: An upset stomach, a small intestine containing little nourishment to feed the body, and a colon which often needs another purgative dose—and another—and another—to prod it into renewed muscular action.

IN SHORT: YOU INFLICT UPON YOUR DIGESTIVE SYSTEM UNNATURAL PUNISHMENT WHICH LEAVES A TRAIL OF DIGESTIVE HAVOC, INSTEAD OF THE CORRECTIVE RESULTS HOPED FOR.

With these facts before you, is it possible to doubt that continual overdosing can so weaken your digestive function that finally, "the remedy is worse than the disease"?

If you feel you have to take a laxative occasionally, be sure you take it wisely—in an accurate, recommended dose.

BUT THERE IS A WAY TO AVOID DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES ALTOGETHER, AND PLACE YOUR MAIN DEPENDENCE ON NATURE.

* * *

It is a medically established fact that nature has provided, in the natural foods men were intended to eat, all the elements necessary for lifelong avoidance of common constipation.

In many of these natural foods—such as certain vegetables, fruits and grains—nature grew, AND GROWS TODAY, abundant natural fibrous bulk which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

And in no other natural food is this natural bulk so ideally found as in the vitamin-rich, mineral-rich outer layers of the whole wheat kernel, known generally as bran.

Whole-wheat bran is nature's "food instead of a medicine" . . . a veritable storehouse of such essential nutritional elements as iron, calcium, phosphorus, vitamin A, Thiamine, riboflavin and niacin.

—whole bran when properly processed and shredded yields smooth bulk the digestive system can handle unimpaired.

—AND MOST IMPORTANT TO CONSTIPATION SUFFERERS: THE COMPLETE, WHOLE BRAN, WITH NOTHING TAKEN AWAY TO LESSEN ITS EFFECTIVENESS, IS KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN—THE NATURAL LAXATIVE CEREAL.

Let us tell you how Kellogg's All-Bran works inside your body. And we leave it to you to compare its action with the unnatural "forcing action" which takes place when you overdose your digestive system in the way previously described.

1. Kellogg's All-Bran has no significant laxative action in the stomach or small intestine, thus it does not significantly change the normal digestive sequence. Only in the colon, where laxative action is needed, does laxative action take place.
2. Kellogg's All-Bran is eaten with milk, thus it draws from the system no needed water and digestive juices. It has no harsh action, thus it does not rush vitamins or minerals past the small intestine too quickly for absorption.
3. Kellogg's All-Bran is rich in vitamins and minerals, thus it actually assures the presence of these elements in the small intestine for proper absorption.
4. Kellogg's All-Bran is shredded to fine, soft consistency, thus it supplies bulk which neither irritates nor inflames the normal colon. It helps—as nature itself intended—to supply the proper consistency for unforced, normal elimination.

THERE IS NO CHURNING, NO STOMACH UPSET, NO AFTER-EFFECT, EXCEPT THE FEELING OF SATISFACTION AND FULFILLMENT WHICH COMES WITH NORMAL, NATURAL ELIMINATION.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN IS SAFE FOR THE NORMAL DIGESTIVE TRACT.

YOU DO NOT COURT THE DISASTER OF PROGRESSIVE CONSTIPATION WHEN YOU EAT ONE OUNCE OF KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN DAILY, AND DRINK PLENTY OF WATER.

* * *

Kellogg's All-Bran is not a habit-forming "drug-type" laxative but a delicious NATURAL laxative cereal.

It is sold as a cereal. Bought at cereal prices. Served as a cereal. Eaten as a cereal. Enjoyed like a cereal, with a crunchy, toasty, nut-like flavor like a cereal. Digested like a cereal. Many prefer it, on taste and eating qualities alone, to any other cereal on the market.

Kellogg's All-Bran is ALL BRAN. No "part-bran" cereal—in the amounts you usually eat for breakfast—can give you the benefits of All-Bran.

No exaggerated claims are made for the laxative qualities of All-Bran. The name Kellogg's on the package, a symbol of healthful foods throughout the world, speaks for itself.

But the thousands of unsolicited testimonial letters which pour in—and the fact that it is today the largest-selling laxative cereal in the world, with over four hundred million servings per year consumed by the American public—indicate that it lives up to the fine things said about it.

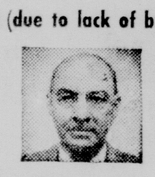

Kellogg's All-Bran is no "overnight cure" for constipation. There is no such cure. All-Bran must be eaten regularly to obtain the natural and lasting relief you are looking for.

Kellogg's makes it easy for you to prove that to yourself. Just eat All-Bran every morning for 10 days. Then, if you're not completely satisfied, send the empty carton to Kellogg's Battle Creek, Michigan—and get double your money back.

READ HOW OTHER SUFFERERS FROM CONSTIPATION (due to lack of bulk in the diet) HAVE BENEFITED:

"I spent half my life looking for a cure for constipation. After 35 years I began eating Kellogg's All-Bran daily. I haven't been bothered with constipation since."
—Mrs. Margaret Topham
300 W. Shephard St., Saginaw 3, Mich.

"I wish I had all the money I've spent on laxatives. I used them for 20 years. Finally I got around to trying Kellogg's All-Bran. I haven't needed a laxative since."

Girl Scout Troop 51 spent Friday and Saturday at Camp Sakajewa with its leader, Mrs. Orville Perkins, and Sandra Houston, acting as assistant. The girls prepared and cooked their meal out of doors. Their activities at camp consisted of working on a Mother's Day gift, a promissory note, giving the Little House a spring cleaning, and laying a trail with a treat as the reward. Mrs. William Schien, Mrs. James Woods and Mrs. Leon Petree assisted Mrs. Perkins with transportation. Troop 51 says that no other troop can leave the Little House so clean.

Mrs. Woodcocks Troop 56 at Broadway School hiked from the school to the farm of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan. When they arrived at the farm they found that the oven was quite a distance from the road, so by their calculations they walked five miles to the spot of their cookout.

They are Barbara Grady, Betty Ann Klein and Barbara Lamy. Awards were made for second class badge, badges towards First Class, and Sandra Houston received her first class award. Picture of a Man Relaxing!

The next time you find yourself alongside a new Cadillac at the traffic light—take a good look at the gentleman behind the wheel.

The odds are overwhelming that you'll see a man relaxed and at ease.

For serenity is part and parcel of the great experience of driving a 1953 Cadillac. In fact, owners frequently take to the highway just for the relaxation the car provides.

And well they might. For here, beyond all question, is one of the surest therapeutics for the tension of work-a-day life!

Just sitting there in the driver's seat is enough to put a man at ease. The cushions are deep and luxurious and restful . . . the wheel is perfectly positioned for the driver's hands . . . and beauty and comfort and spaciousness are in every direction.

And driving a Cadillac is as restful as sitting in a Cadillac.

That great, powerful engine responds as if by magic . . . carrying the car in and out of traffic almost as quickly and as easily as the driver makes his decision to do so. Steering is feather-light and effortless . . . and braking calls only for the slightest pressure from the daintiest foot.

Of course, if the driver has chosen a Cadillac Air Conditioner* for his car, he refreshes as he relaxes. With a simple adjustment of a single lever, he can lower the car's interior to any normal temperature he desires—even in the warmest weather.

Yes, it's little wonder that the man in the Cadillac always looks so comfortable and happy and relaxed. In plain fact—he is!

* * * *

Wouldn't it be wonderful to find such satisfaction in your own motoring? Of course it would—and that's why we suggest that you come in for a personal demonstration.

We'll gladly put you behind the wheel—for the most relaxing hour you ever spent on the highway.

*Optional at extra cost.

PEO Antique-Hobby Show Will Include Many Interesting Items

The P.E.O. members who are rushing around getting things ready for their antique and hobby show on Friday, May 22, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry Salveter, 1212 South Barrett, are having a few problems.

They want to have a good display of hobbies and antiques, but they can't use entire collections because they don't have the space so around goes Mrs. K. U. Love figuring: "A half of bed for this collection—a half a bed for that collection—a half a card table for this—and so on—".

But when they get everything together they are going to have quite a show—things that are of real interest to men as well as women.

Some of the collections belong to men—in fact some of the best collections belong to males.

Take the tailboard of a Sicilian two-wheeled cart that belongs to General John C. McLaughlin. General McLaughlin saw the cart going down a street in Sicily when he was over there and went tearing after it. He wanted that tailboard and the man with the cart sold it to him. It didn't mean very much to the man with the cart—it was just a tailboard for his cart. But that tailboard was carved in wood and was over a hundred years old. On it was the scene of the Mafian knife fight and jail break with depth carving and color. And so, the tailboard of the little cart now hangs over the mantel in the McLaughlin home—but he is going to take it down long enough for the show.

Mrs. E. H. Gold has a collection of butter pats, or chips, whichever anyone chooses to call them, and she has to laugh a little every time she thinks of them. Mrs. Gold had started the collection and had a wide variety of the butter pats when she went to Germany to be with her son while he was living there. They were in a restaurant in Frankfurt and were served butter on little pewter pats.

"Ask the waiter if I may have one of those little pats for my collection," Mrs. Gold told her son, who speaks German very well.

It had been a long time since Mrs. Gold had tried speaking German and she hadn't been too good at it in the first place, but when the boy wouldn't ask for her she tried asking herself.

The waiter couldn't understand her, but he thought she wanted some more butter—so back he rushed and got more butter. She tried again and again, but each time he thought she still wanted butter and he brought more butter and more butter, much to the amusement of her son.

Finally, in some manner she made the waiter understand what she wanted and this time he went back and returned with three different sizes of butter pats for her—and they are in her collection, which was started with six pats that belonged to her mother and she played with as a child.

Mrs. Gold will also have on display her Rosenthal china, Selb Bavaria which her son bought for her in Germany. She has six place settings and this is said to be the finest of all china.

Mrs. Gold has another thing for the show, pressed colored glass, which is among the most beautiful of all glass.

Another interesting display is that of Mrs. Philip McLaughlin which consists of two christening dresses and petticoats which came from Scotland. These dresses have been in Mrs. McLaughlin's father's family, the Akin family, for 100 years or more and were worn by the babies of the family at their christening.

Fran Love herself has something she thinks is a bit unusual—a bedspread with the thread spun and woven by her great, great grandmother, Catherine Barrett, and then brought by Fran's grandmother in a covered wagon to the Dakota territory from Port Arthur, Ontario, Canada, about 70 years ago.

Among things being exhibited by men is a rock collection by the Rev. Roy L. Bowers; shawls by Frank Mehl; and coins by Bill Hert. A number of others are expected to have collections for the show, too.

Every type of thing is being listed in the show from articles from the Southwest Pacific to buttons and wine glasses to Easter eggs.

Among others who have already listed their collections are Mrs. H. C. Feuers, Mrs. Ed Hoffman, Mrs. George Routszong, Mrs. Robert Holt, Mrs. E. H. Gold, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Collins, Mrs. G. G. Hopkins, Mrs. A. L. Walter, Mrs. Bert Hathaway, Mrs. L. S. Geiger, Charlotte Salveter, Mrs. W. B. Hert, all with interesting stories.

Mrs. Love expects many more people to loan their collections for the show, which is being given to raise money for the P.E.O. educational fund. The loans are up to $1,000 and any girl may apply for a loan through the local P.E.O. Chapter, which is affiliated with the P.E.O. of the United States, Hawaii and Canada.

Cottey Junior College for girls, at Nevada, is owned and maintained by the P.E.O. and is believed to be the only college which is owned and maintained by women.

A silver tea will be given at the Salveter home for the Antique and Hobby Show during the hours of 2 to 5 p.m. and in the evening there will be a parcel post room from 7 to 9 p.m.

Bunker Hill was one of the most famous battles of American history, yet British dead totaled only 226 and only 145 Americans lost their lives.

AT LACKLAND—William E. Bellis, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Bellis, 1113 South Massachusetts, is completing his AF basic airmen indoctrination course at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., the "Gateway to the Air Force."

Weather Costs More Than All Gov't of 1834

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States spends more money forecasting the weather now than it cost to run the whole government during Andy Jackson's administration.

Whether either the climate or the government has improved since then is a matter of personal opinion. It's reported that the Weather Bureau's appropriation for the last fiscal year was $26,970,000 in contrast to total government expenditures of $24,601,982 in 1834.

But the dollar would buy more than three times as much wholesale then, so in terms of 1953 dollars it actually cost only about eight million to run the government in 1834. The tax collectors are taking in about 68½ billion dollars a year now, compared to some 22 million then—about 3,000 times as much in face-value dollars but only about 1,000 time as much if you put 1834 and 1953 dollars on the same basis.

Federal taxes on cigarettes—unknown in Old Hickory's time—were more than 1½ billion dollars last year. Congress appropriated 33 million dollars to run the Selective Service System, 69 million for the Forest Service and 90 million for the FBI.

Former President Truman, in his last budget before leaving office in January, estimated that a total of $78,600,000,000 would be needed to operate the government in the next fiscal year, which starts July 1. However, some top Republicans have been talking of cutting this by six to 10 billion.

President Eisenhower says he hopes to save 8½ billion dollars in new appropriations in the next fiscal year. It does not follow, however, that actual spending would drop that much, even if Congress goes along. Much of the money Congress appropriates one year is carried over to future years. There have been estimates that an 8½ billion cut in next year's appropriations might mean a reduction of only 5½ billion in actual spending.

Although individual income taxes, corporate levies and excise (sales) taxes now bring in the bulk of the revenue, in Jackson's day the government relied chiefly on customs duties and cash from the sale of public lands.

It cost only $469,074 to operate Congress, but at that time there were only about half as many members. They received $6 for each day's attendance. Congress set up $61,731,725 for its salaries and running expenses last year, when it had 531 members.

Some of the main obligations of the government more than a century ago were $2,435,403 for the Army and $3,901,356 for the naval establishment; Revolutionary War pensions $3,507,484, Indian affairs $1,912,981, breakwaters and piers $435,761 and improving rivers $240,000.

A total of $658,608 was appropriated for general expenses of the executive departments and $338,758 for the judiciary in 1833.

Other items included $313,930 for light houses, $753,688 for roads, $18,313 for coastal surveys and $117,166 for the Military Academy.

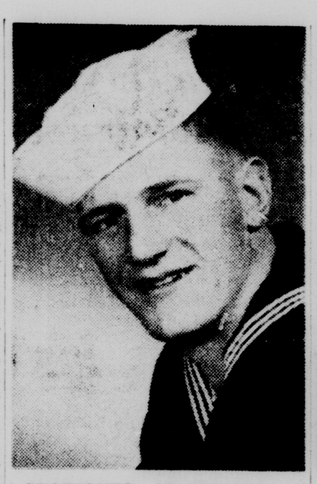

The Army stood at a low level of manpower—less than half a modern division. Hugh Murray, an early-day student of government, attributed this in a book to a comjealousy."

Murray jotted down the regulars strength as two regiments of dragoons, four regiments of artillery and seven of infantry, plus the Corps of Engineers, the topographical engineers and the ordnance department.

This made about 7,600 men, including one major general, three brigadier generals, 19 colonels, 15 lieutenant colonels, 28 majors, and 140 captains.

The skelton of the oldest known horse is estimated to be 45,000,000 years old. Found in Wyoming, the fossil stands 11 inches high.

The ancient Norman capital of Rouen, located on the Seine River about 30 miles inland from the coast, was the first port of France.

STATIONED AT BOSTON—Roland L. Oelrichs, fireman apprentice, is now serving aboard the USS Thomas at Boston, Mass., after spending a 14-day leave in Sedalia recently with his wife, Fern, at their apartment on West Fourth. He enlisted in the Navy Feb. 14 of this year and received his "boot training" at the Great Lakes Naval Station. His wife will leave May 23 to join him in Boston.

PROMOTED—Harold A. Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Palmer, Green Ridge, was recently promoted to the rank of master sergeant. He is stationed at Oxnard Air Base, Calif., and is spending a 30 day leave with his parents.

Notes From Public Library—

Collectors of Antique Glass Find Books Are Now Available

Collectors of antique glass will find a new book by a famous specialist, Ruth Webb Lee, at the Library. "Nineteenth Century Art Glass" is a complete guide to the 26 most interesting, collectible types of the last century — Amberina, Plated Amberina, Rubena Verde, Peachblow (a thorough clarification), Wild Rose, Satin Glass, Tiffany, Cameo, etc.

Almost every family china closet holds one or more of these treasures which once graced the mantels and what-nots of our Victorian grandmothers. Sought by more and more collectors, these pieces have increased in value. "Nineteenth Century Art Glass" takes the guesswork out of judging and buying this type of glass.

Miss Lee's earlier book, "Early American Pressed Glass" is the "glass collector's bible" since it lists, describes and illustrates over 279 patterns of the pressed glass which was manufactured in America from about 1850 to 1880. Also much in demand by collectors or dealers in glass is "Victorian Glass," which covers specialties such as glass hats, slippers, vases, match holders and covered animal dishes.

The increasing demand by collectors, hobbyists and dealers for antique glass has resulted in some reproductions and fakes being sold as genuine antiques. Ruth Webb Lee's "Antique Fakes and Reproductions" is the answer to the widespread desire for information that will help buyers to distinguish copies from originals. The antiques dealt with in this book are blown glass, Bohemian glass, cup plates, historial flasks, lamps and globes, pattern glass, paper weights and ceramics.

The first postcards from Miss Sarah Trotter, on her way to the Coronation, created a stir —they were so original. None of them said wish you were here.

Estimate $1,239,000 In Farm Residence Repairs This Year

Pettis County home owners will spend an estimated $1,239,000 during 1953 on repairing and modernizing non - farm dwellings, according to a report just released by the tile council.

"As the great postwar home building boom begins to slacken, home repair and reconditioning will assume major importance to the building trades in every community," said Robert Bailey, chairman of the council's residential construction committee.

Nearly two of every three home owners here will make some expenditure during the year to improve their property, according to the report. Painting of either the exterior or interior will be the most common repair, with replacing or repairing heating equipment second, work on roofs third.

Sabres Bag 11 MIGs, Top Three Aces Each Get 1

SEOUL (AP) — Allied Sabre jets blasted at least 11 Communist MIGs from the North Korean sky and damaged six others today in one of their greatest victories over the swept-wing Red jets.

Each of America's three top aces flying in Korea scored a kill.

Today's bag was the biggest since last September when the deadly Sabres destroyed 13 MIGs and damaged four. The record was set last July 4 when Allied pilots shot down 13 MIGs, probably destroyed one and damaged seven.

Capt. Manuel Fernandez of Miami, Fla., downed his 14th MIG today to regain his position as the world's top ranking jet ace. Only a few hours earlier Capt. Joseph McConnell of Apple Valley, Calif., had destroyed his 13th MIG to tie Fernandez temporarily.

Capt. James Jabara of Wichita, Kan., the first U. S. ace of the Korean war, bagged his first MIG since returning to Korea for his second tour of duty. Jabara now has seven MIGs.

The suddenly stepped-up tempo of the aerial war was matched on the ground where thousands of Chinese slammed into Allied lines in Central Korea and were driven off by tough South Korean infantrymen.

In bitter hand-to-hand fighting, Allied troops backed by thunderous artillery fire, cut up a force of some 4,000 Chinese.

Frontline reports said 1,300 Reds were killed or wounded, most of them in the sector east of Sniper Ridge, where South Koreans fought off a regiment of Chinese in dark trenches.

He Erases Ray Rayl's Record

Shepherd Joins Fast Company Before Injury Sidelines Him

Smith-Cotton's track season, for all practical purposes, came to an abrupt halt seconds after the accompanying picture was taken last Tuesday, when the Tigers' hard-luck distance star, Jim Bob Shepherd, tripped and suffered a fractured arm in the fall.

To say that Fate is unkind to Shepherd is an understatement—he missed-out on his senior season's basketball play due to another break, of the same arm in the same place, which occurred last December in practice.

And, as so often happens, Shepherd's darkest hour came just after his brightest.

Only the day before he had ground-out the most rapid half-mile ever recorded by a Smith-Cotton athlete— a 2:02.7 performance against Clinton.

The mark which Shepherd erased was written on the local books in May of 1939 when the legendary Ray Rayl won the state Class-A outdoor with a 2:04.3 trip.

Mention of Rayl automatically guides a conversation to track stars of the past and comparisons to those of the present.

Despite the claims of those of the prewar days, the trackman of today are just about as good as those of the 1930 era and the Central Missouri Conference powerhouses coached by Don Davenport and Jimmy Obermiller in the 1939-41 span—at least, that's what the record book says.

Let's break things down to individual events; the times listed are either winning ones or places clocked in a conference or state meets.

Shawver The Fastest

In the 100-yard dash Bob Shawver holds the record with a :10.1 time, which he turned-in in the CMC meet in 1951 finishing second to Louis Bonifield of Hannibal, who ran 10 flat. Prior to that the standard was set by Tommy Sanders, who won the CMC in 1939 in :10.3. This year Lingle went the 100 yards in :10.5.

The 220 apparently has always been a weak event at S-C. The top recorded time is :23.4, by Floyd Burton in 1952. The best located prior to that was :24 flat by Bob Hausam in 1940, although Sanders ran second to Jim Darr in a :22.2 sprint in 1939 but was not clocked. Lingle was caught in :23.5 this season.

Cliff Logan holds the 440-yard dash mark, :52.7 set in the CMC meet in 1940. Chester O'Bannon ran a :53-flat quarter last season and had a :53.5 clocking this season before he was sidelined by poison ivy.

The 880, of course, belongs to Shepherd with Rayl second. Another fine Tiger half-miler, Glenn Foley, won the CMC meet in 1940 in 2:07.7.

Rayl, oddly enough, does not hold the mile record. His best time was 4:36, run the same day as his best half-mile. But in 1941 Donald Vanderlinder went the mile in 4:35.6 in the state meet. Other good mile times are Warren Keene's 4:37 in the 1951 state, a 4:44 state winner by Don Lamm in 1944 and Shepherd's 4:44.9 this year.

Burton Tops Hurdlers

Burton has the monopoly on the hurdle events. He raced over the 120-yard highs in :15.3 in 1952 and the 180-yard lows in :20.2 the same year. Glenn Gudorp stepped the highs in :15.9 for the next best in the highs and Bobby Case ran the lows in :21.6 this year for the next closest. The 180-yard lows are a relatively new event; the distance was 200 yards before 1952.

Jim Bob Shepherd

Another change hinders comparison of relay events. Today teams run a straight mile relay (each runner goes 440 yards) compared to a medley in the 1940 era. In the medley it was a half mile divided up into 220-110-110-440 legs.

But the other relay, the straight 880, is the same. The best time is 1:34.5 turned-in in 1940 by a team composed of Hausam, Teddy Ellis, Sanders and Leroy Brauer. The next best is a 1:35-flat clicked-off by Bill McCrary, John Tope, Burton and Don Pummill.

In the weight events Randall Scott looms as the best in many moons. He holds the shot-put mark with a 48-foot toss measured at the William Jewell Relays in 1941, and the discus record with a 142-foot-7 heave the same year at the Chillicothe Business College Relays.

His closest competitors are Whitey Bryant, who tossed the shot 47-feet-1 in 1951, and Delbert Ford, who threw the discus 131-feet-10½ last year.

Van Dyne Vaults Best

Danny Van Dyne holds the pole vault record, 12-feet-3 in the 1943 state meet. Before that Jimmy Meyers and Jack Graham had 11-foot efforts in 1941. Last year Skip Schulz and Jim Dent went 11-feet-1¾.

Paul Meyer is the best in the high jump with a 6-foot-¼ leap to win the state in 1938. Since then Charles Weller cleared 5-feet-11 in 1941, Donald Decker 5-feet-9¾ in 1951 and Buck Bennett 5-feet-9½ this year.

The broad jump is an open and shut victory for Bill McCrary, who soared 21-feet-4½ in 1951—no one else has come close to that, before or since.

And so, Shepherd can find solace in one fact—he joined some fast company before being sidelined.

Generous Browns Hand 6-0 Game To Washington

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP) —Bob Porterfield won his fourth straight game and pitched his third shut-out of the season today as Washington scored five unearned runs in the first inning off Harry Brecheen and defeated the St. Louis Browns, 6-0. Porterfield allowed eight hits.

Porterfield, who lost his first three starts, hasn't permitted a run in 19 innings. He was staked to a commanding lead in the first inning when the Senators erupted for five runs after two were out.

Wayne Terwilliger walked with one out and second baseman Bobby Young fumbled Jackie Jensen's grounder. Mickey Vernon grounded out and after Clyde Vollmer was purposely passed to fill the bases, Pete Runnels, Jim Busby, Micky Grasso and Porterfield singled successively to chase Brecheen. Mike Blyzka, who replaced him, wild-pitched another run across.

The Senators added a run off Bob Cain in the second inning. Third baseman Jim Dyck bobbled Terwilliger's grounder. Terwilliger was forced by Jensen, but Vernon's single sent Jansen to third and he scored on Runnels' outfield fly.

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP)—Pitcher Tommy Byrne exploded a pinch hit home run with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to give the Chicago White Sox a 5-3 victory over the New York Yankees today and bring the Sox to within one-half game of the league-leading Yanks. Vic Raschi of New York had Chicago shut out for eight and two-thirds innings, but weakened and was replaced by Ewell Blackwell, who threw the home run ball to Byrne.

SAFB To Play Ft. Wood Here Twice In Week

Baseball fans will have an opportunity to see one of the nation's leading service teams in action Wednesday and Thursday night at Liberty Park when the Ft. Leonard Wood Hilltoppers and the Sedalia Air Force Base team meet. Both games are scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

The Hilltoppers were second-place finishers in the national baseball tournament at Wichita, Kan., last year, the tournament sponsored by the National Baseball Congress. The tournament was won by Ft. Meyer Colonels in the final game of the tournament, 5-4.

The Ft. Leonard Wood team represented Missouri in the national baseball battle.

Already for the 1953 season the Hilltoppers have a record of six wins and no losses. Dick Campbell, who had six years Class B and C experience is manager of the visiting team.

Such stars as Bill Black, Detroit Tigers, who figured in the trade for Ned Garver, St. Louis Browns pitcher, in 1952; "Whitey" Hozog, outfielder with the Kansas City Blues in 1952; Vince Magi, captain of the Michigan State College '52 squad; Dean Ehlers, former star with the Central College baseball team at Fayette, the only member of the 1952 champion team, will be in the outfield.

The Hilltoppers will play the Holden Chiefs at Holden on Tuesday night and come on to Sedalia for the Wednesday and Thursday meeting.

T/Sgt. Richard T. Halahan, manager of the SAFB, has been working his team hard the past week between showers trying to get them ready for the big two-game series. "We promise to give the visitors a surprise," says Halahan.

McDermott, Kell Star As Bosox Blank Tribe

BOSTON, May 16 (AP)—After passing the first two batters with eight consecutive balls, Lefty Maury McDermott settled down and put the Boston Red Sox into third place by shutting out the Cleveland Indians, 1-0, today with a two-hit pitching performance. George Kell's homer settled matters in the sixth inning. It was the Indians' fifth consecutive loss.

MILWAUKEE, May 16 (AP)—One hit, 10-strikeout pitching by Curt Simmons shot Philadelphia back into first place in the National League by a full game today as the Phillies beat Milwaukee, 3-0, before 23,578 fans. The lone hit off Simmons was a leadoff single by Bill Bruton in the first inning. The Phillies nicked two Braves' hurlers for 10 hits.

KC Southwest Easily Wins Class-A Meet

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 16 (AP)—Kansas City Southwest rolled up a total of 54 points in winning the Class A Missouri state high school track and field meet here today.

Kirkwood placed second with 31 3/7 points.

Other team scores were: Springfield 24¾, University City 22-17/28, Kansas City ortheast 18¾, St. Louis Christian Brothers 17, 17/28, Kansas City Northeast 18¾, Kansas City Bishop Hogan 13, St. Louis Roosevelt 12, Jefferson City 9, Webster Groves 8, North Kansas City 8, Neosho 8, Independence William Chrisman 5, St. Louis Beaumont 4, Raytown 3, Kansas City Central 3, Kansas City East 2¾, Kansas City Paseo 2, Kansas City Westport 2, St. Joseph Benton 1 3/7, Normandy 3/7, St. Louis Central 3/7.

Of interest to Sedalians is the half-mile, won by Tom Roberts of Kirkwood in 2:05.9. Jerry Jenner of Springfield was third.

Jim Bob Shepherd of Sedalia, who ran the half in 2:02.7 last Monday, of course did not compete due to an injury.

The only Central Missouri Conference athlete to score points was Bob Mackie of Jefferson City, who won the high jump at 5-feet-11½ and placed fifth in the broad jump with a 20-feet-9¼ leap.

The broad jump was won by Walt Forrester of Springfield at 21-feet-7, with team-mate Harry Maynard placing third with a jump of 21-feet-5½.

Joe Underwood of Springfield took the mile in 4:42.8.

The only record established was in the shot-put, in which Lynn Goodman of Kansas City Southwest pushed the 12-pound ball 54-feet-3¼ to erase a 54-feet-2½ record set in 1937 by Bland Roberts of Louisiana.

Rain Washes-Out All Time Trails In The Big 500

INDIANAPOLIS, May 16—(AP)—Scheduled opening of time trials for the 37th 500-mile auto race May 30 was rained out today at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, and it was just as well.

The death Friday of Chet Miller, who thought this was his year to win the big race after 16 unsuccessful attempts, was a severe shock, even to the accident-hardened racing fraternity.

One of the few pre-World War II drivers still competing, the quiet, professional Miller was the idol of the new generaiton at the track.

Lou Welch of Novi, Mich., owner of the 550-horsepower Novi in which Miller crashed into the south wall, said, "I never thought it would happen to Chet."

Another attempt will be made tomorrow to start trial runs, which will cut the 83 entrants to a starting field of 33 cars. Additional qualifications are scheduled May 23 and 24.

Miller had raced at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway since 1930 and finished in the first 10 five times.

Sports Scraps

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

FROM across the world comes a letter to John Van Dyne, written by our former employee, friend, and real sports enthusiast who desires to help Sedalia's Little League on its way. Yes, it is from Gene Williams formerly on the Democrat-Capital, who enclosed a $10 postal money order toward erection of the Little League stadium at the Jennie Jaynes Lewis Memorial recreation area.

It is just like Gene to do something like this. He was a youngster who loved sports, he followed them, and actually had sports as his steady diet. But because there was no organized program for recreation in Sedalia, his participation in the various sporting activities were pretty well confined. Now as a young man he is looking back and at the same time forward to what he can do in his meager way to give some youngster an opportunity something he didn't have. His letter to Mr. Van Dyne is self explanatory.

"Dear Mr. Van Dyne:

"Today I received the Sedalia Democrat of April 6th and being an ardent follower of home town sports, even though I am on the opposite side of the world, I thumbed to the sports page first, finding most welcome reading in column one—the story of the fund raising drive to build a Little League stadium.

"When I was the age of the little leaguers of today fellows were not as fortunate. Interest lacked, mainly because some organization did not support a program like the one now provided.

"Perhaps you recall me, or the team I was a member of in 1948 since you were one of our sponsors. We organized in the spring and dubbed ourselves the "Junior Athletics", probably, I guess, because I was the bat boy for the local semi-pros of that name sponsored by Ivan Berry.

"We hustled around town and induced some of the sports-minded businessmen, like you, to sponsor a uniform. With some taped-up bats and some other riddled equipment and our newly acquired uniforms we took to the parks, lots and fields to play ball. But then we hit another barrier . . . who were we to play?

"During the entire summer we were able to drum-up games with a few other 'wildcat' teams in Sedalia and even a few games with teams from Kansas City and small surrounding towns. We had a good club, but organization lacked. After that year a few movements were put afoot to start a boys league, but none succeeded until the Little League program of 1952.

"Today the youngsters have what we thought the acme for kids, and more in just the fact that they are in an organization that is supervised ably. I hope they get the stadium and more too!

"Baseball, besides being a great sport for playing enjoyment, helps build sportsmanship, with which comes much of a person's character. With the Little Leagues organized as they are and the possibility of a Little League stadium, Sedalia boys will have little to want in the way of sports. It should provide them a fine place to spend their spare summer time and at the same time improve both their ball playing ability and sportsmanship.

"Whoever is backing the drive for the stadium and those supporting teams in the little league deserve a "Well Done" for time and money wisely spent. I believe I realize what virtues are derived by the community from such a program, and as a Sedalian, I wish to express my appreciation to you, other persons on the fund raising committee for the stadium and all others connected with this wonderful program for their outstanding efforts.

"Enclosed is my contribution. Although small, I hope it helps your drive for the Little League stadium and perhaps a boy of my home town. I only wish that I could be of more assistance.

"Sincerely yours,
"Gene E. Williams."

LITTLE LEAGUE baseball is a fine program, an excellent start for recreation for Sedalia's youngsters, but there still is a dire need for a recreational program for those youngsters who are 13 up to 17 who need some kind of a program to care for them.

The City of Sedalia should, and can, set aside a certain amount of money for recreation for Sedalia. Make it possible to hire a professional recreational director, like Marshall has. I have preached this time and again before.

There now is a bill in the State Legislature granting cities, school districts and soforth a right to put a recreational tax on. But, we should not have to wait until the football has been kicked around in the legislature before taking some action.

Maybe the City Fathers would like this, but the City Budget has not been set, it is supposed to be set Monday night, however, maybe in the last minute they could scrape up enough money to pay a recreational director a fair salary and a couple assistants for a three months program this summer. Maybe they can't, but there isn't any reason why they shouldn't give it some thought before the budget is finally passed Monday night.

I believe we might get some of Sedalia's school teachers to take over the program at a fair salary, possibly a $3,200 budget for director, two assistants and equipment. It would be a starter and if the State Recreational bill is passed then carry on from there.

LOCAL law enforcement officers have had some difficulty with juveniles recently. Actually I do not blame the parents, the home environment, it happens in the best of families. But I do blame Sedalia for not having some type of a program which will teach these children to do better, know right from wrong.

Teen agers are funny. They will listen to an outsider quicker on some things than they will their own parents, not that they do not respect their parents. They ott times think it is smart to do something wrong and do not realize what reflection it will be on their parents. When caught they are sorry—but it is then too late.

A well rounded out recreation program, with a good director and leaders may have an influence on many a child which will pay more dividends in making a good boy or girl than the money spent for the program. One thing for certain, it has been proven, such a program has been the direct result of a decrease in juvenile delinquency.

THE Garden of Eden, Warrensburg, is holding an official opening on Sunday May 24, Ed Houx, owner announced Saturday. The grounds, and beautiful natural swimming "hole" have been improved since last season. There have been erected many picnic benches, barbecue ovens, and additional playgrounds.

"There's plenty of room for fishing too," says Houx.

Carv Clings To His Lead InRoundRobin

WESTBURY, N. Y., May 16 (AP) Memphis' Cary Middlecoff stood off a bristling fourth-round rally by Jimmy Demaret today to cling to a one-point lead in the $17,500 Meadow Brook Round Robin golf tournament.

The tall Tennesseean shot a 67 over the 6,648-yard, par 70 course to pick up 10 additional plus points. This gave him a three-day total of 35, one more than Demaret.

Demaret, golf's dashing clothes horse who wore a cerise flying saucer cap and played with mink-covered gloves, blazed a brilliant 65-best round of the day—to add 18 plus points to his previous 16.

Middlecoff and Demaret played in the same foursome, along with Tommy Bolt, the renowned club thrower, and Byron Nelson, greying cattle rancher from Roanoke, Tex. Bolt authored a 69 and the 41-year- old Nelson, showing the strain of the rigorous test, skied to 77, the worst round of the tournament.

Jack Burke Jr., Demaret's boyish contemporary at Lake Kiamesha, N. Y., cooled off the torrid Lloyd Mangrum and moved into third place with 22 plus points, followed by Mangrum with plus 20.

Scoring in the tourney is based on standings figured by comparison of each player's card with that of the other three men in the foursome and not on the best medal scores. The foursomes are rotated each round so that by the end of the program each golfer has played in a group with each of the other 15 entrants.

Burke, superb with his irons, shot a 67 to pick up 10 plus points. In the same quartet, Mangrum, former National Open champion, and San Francisco's Jim Ferrier had 70s and Doug Ford a 71.

Ferrier and two others — lanky Dave Douglas and South Africa's glum Bobby Locke—were the only others on the credit side of the ledger. They each had plus 6.

Other entries announced today were Al Besselink, Jim Ferrier, Jim Clark, Ted Kroll, Marty Furgol, Bo Wininger and Art Walls.

Mizell Guides Cards' Jump Into Third

ST. LOUIS, May 16 (AP)—Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell pitched the St. Louis Cardinals into third place in the National League tonight by hurling six-hit ball as the Redbirds defeated the New York Giants, 5-2, for their third straight victory.

The rangy 22-year-old lefthanded Mizell outpitched the Giants' veteran star righthander, Sal Maglie, to score his third victory against one defeat. Maglie, yielding 12 hits, suffered his second setback against three triumphs.

Mizell, who has a 2.13 earned-run average for the first 37 innings of his sophomore season, had better control than usual, walking only three batters while striking out six. Maglie passed three and fanned seven.

Stan Musial drove in two runs with a triple and single, Del Rice doubled twice and Enos Slaughter and Solly Hemus also hit two-base blows for St. Louis. Alvin Dark, who shared four of the Giants six hits with Monte Irvin, poked New York's only extra-base blow, a double.

A crowd of 13,187 saw the Cardinals move into third place, eight percentage points ahead of Brooklyn.

After Red Schoendienst's safe bunt, Musial's triple and Slaughter's double had produced two runs in the first, Rip Repulski's first of two singles and D. Rice's initial double accounted for the third tally in the second.

Hemus' double and Musial's single brought in the fourth run in the fifth, and the Giants then scored their two runs in the sixth on Dark's double, successive singles by Bobby Thompson and Irvin, and Whitey Lockman's double-play grounder.

St. Louis' final run resulted from a walk and singles by Slaughter and Ray Jablinski in the seventh.

Big 7 Holds Track Finale In Iowa State

AMES, Ia., May 16 (AP)—Like a lost brother the Big Seven Conference track and field meet returns to Iowa State College Friday and Saturday with three Olympic performers in the cast plus a Kansas team overwhelmingly favored to retain its championship.

After an absence of 14 years, Iowa track fans can watch some of the conference's swiftest runners and longest and highest jumpers in history.

Headed by the inexhaustible Wes Santee of Kansas, the field also includes Thane Baker of Kansas State and Neville Price of Oklahoma, all competitors in the 1952 Olympic games.

Santee, a junior, appears capable of topping conference marks in every event from the 440 through the two-mile run. In order to predict what records he might better, it would be necessary to know just where Coach Bill Easton plans to run him.

Just as brilliant in the dashes is Baker who already this year has been under the Big Seven 220 record of :20.8, a mark he set last year.

The third Olympic participant is Price, the Sooner broad jumper, who represented his native South Africa in the 1952 games.

The Kansas Jayhawks figure to score heaviest in the middle distance and distance races, but they are not without capable talent in every event.

Preliminaries of the meet will start at 3 p.m. (CST) Friday with the final running events at 2 p.m. on Saturday.

In addition to the track meet, Iowa State also entertains the Big Seven golf and tennis championships.

Marciano Ignores Screams

Jersey Joe Asks For Return Bout After 'Raw Deal'

CHICAGO, May 16 (AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott's camp still was screaming "raw deal" and "fast count" today, demanding a rematch with Rocky Marciano, while the heavyweight champion looked ahead to a possible September defense against Roland La Straza or Ezzard Charles.

Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's manager, reversed pre-fite plans to retire the win or lose, and offered to 39-year-old Pappy Guy, donate his entire rematch purse to charity because he wanted no blemish on the 24-year record of Jersey Joe.

Bocchicchio and his lawyer, Angelo Malandra, planned to file a formal protest Monday with the Illinois Athletic Commission, claiming a quick count. They were going to ask the commission to see the movies of the fight to check the accuracy of the timing.

"We are hoping the commission will set aside the result," Malandra told a newsman.

"We are protesting the decision and asking for an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the decision," he said in explaining the nature of the formal plea he plans to make.

"We will ask for a review of the result, plus an interpretation of the boxing rules."

The attorney said the Walcott interests will specifically request interpretations of the rules governing the timekeeper, referee and equipment.

He said the ring flooring was "overpadded," and the ring was smaller than normal size.

The protest will be aimed at setting aside the verdict to pave the way for a charity bout between Walcott and Marciano.

Both Mike Murphy, the knockdown timekeeper, and Fay Young, the regular timekeeper, insisted there was no doubt about the legal 10-count. Young, in fact, said it could have been 13 before Walcott was up and ready to fight.

Referee Frank Sikora, who counted out Walcott at 2:25 of the first round of last night's disappointing bout, said the old boy really was hit "a terrific right."

"It's silly to say Walcott could have gotten up before 10," said Sikora. "He didn't know what he was doing or what was going on while he was down. Walcott said it was nine when he got up and his manager said it was seven. He got the full count. I picked it up from the knockdown counter at four. If I kept on counting it would have been 11 or 12 before he got up."

No TKO Planned

The referee said he probably would have allowed Walcott to continue if he beat the count because it was a championship fight and he didn't want to call a TKO against an experienced vet like Jersey Joe.

Walcott's version, retold at today's press conference at the Midwest Hotel, didn't agree with the officials.

"I heard him count seven," he said. "I started to get up but he pushed me down and waved Marciano the winner."

Walcott's followers claimed he received a flood of wires from well wishers who saw the fight on television. Comments ran from "you were robbed" to "you're still champ with us."

There were protests in newspaper offices all over the country from the TV fans who didn't see the punch or thought the count was quick. The quick ending left a bad taste in nearly everybody's mouth.

Walcott got hit with a right uppercut that dumped him on his back with his feet in the air. I saw the punch. Whether Jersey Joe missed the official count—fast or slow—the point is he did not get up. He was still sitting there on his haunches with one hand on the ring ropes when the referee counted him out.

Rocky, pausing to review the fight with the press before he and his wife left for Holland, Mich., said the punch that ended the fight was about equal in power with the blow that won the title from Walcott at Philadelphia last September.

He Landed Solid Blow

"There was a lot of beef behind it," he said "I must have hit him the best possible shot. When I heard the count get up to eight, I said to myself 'this fellow isn't going to get up.' He hadn't even looked at the referee.

"I wasn't looking for a first round knockout. I just wanted to hurt and slow him down so it would end quicker than 13 this time."

Would Marciano be willing to give Walcott another shot"

"If Al (Manager Al Weill) thinks he deserves another shot, I'm ready," he answered. It might be more difficult to find a promoter interested in another serving of this dish. Say someplace like Northeast Ethiopia.

Bocchicchio still was blazing away at the commission, calling the fight "the most unfair thing the public ever saw."

"In Philadelphia when Marciano got knocked down, he got a clear loud count," said Felix. "Nobody heard this count, they just whispered it."

Newsmen sitting five or six rows from ringside said they were able to hear the "whisper" clearly. Everyone agreed the fight aftermath was much better than the fight.

Dancer Scores Easy Victory At Belmont

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP)—Native Dancer bounded back into the winner's circle today after his ridiculously easy style from two lesser opponents at Belmont Park.

He demonstrated he definitely is the horse to beat in the $100,000 Preakness a week from today in Baltimore.

Jockey Eric Guerin permitted Alfred Vanderbilt's big grey colt to lay off the pace down the backstretch. Guerin turned him loose a bit on the far turn to get the lead midway around, then let out another notch in the run to the wire where he finished four lengths ahead of the Saxon Stable's Invigorator.

Mrs. George F. Spear's Real Brother, the only other horse beside Invigorator to tackle the Dancer in the 78th running of the country's oldest and most important mile race, was third, two and one-half lengths further away. The crowd of 38,044 sent the Vanderbilt ace off at prohibitive 1 to 20 odds and there was win betting only. The winner paid the minimum of $2.10 for $2. State law requires a five cent return on the dollar.

With $154,909 bet on the race, $127,741 was set on Native Dancer and a minus pool of $2,100 resulted. This was nowhere near the minus pool created in 1943 when Count Fleet, also a 1-20 favorite likewise beat two opponents and the track had to dig down for more than $26,000. This was the second minus pool created this year by Native Dancer. In winning the Wood Memorial at Jamaica before the derby, he caused a $25,000 minus pool in place and show betting.

Native Dancer stumbled coming out of the starting gate, but quickly recovered.

Snider Lays-Off Bad Balls To Become Feared Batsman

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The evolution of Edwin (Duke) Snider from an exasperating ball player of limitless talent to an exciting ball player with limitless talent began in the World Series of 1952.

The Duke, who plays a brilliant center field for the Dodgers, is making it stick this season with his finest start in nine years of profesisonal baseball—a start that has him batting more than .350, clubbing awesome home runs and running the bases with all the zip of a 26-year-old at his peak and enjoying life.

What gives with the handsome Californian who had to be benched for listless play only last August?

"He's making them pitch strikes to him," gestures Charley Dressen.

* * *

Snider, 10 pounds heavier than he was last season, offers no other plausible explanation except that "all of a sudden, I'm feeling very strong."

He has learned to lay off the high inside pitch. It used to be that anything around his ears brought on a snap of the Snider wrists and, more frequently than not, the kerplunk of the ball in the catcher's mitt.

Dressen will never forget the dismal 1949 World Series with the Yankees when "anything they threw, he swung at." He fanned eight times in five games to tie a record, after leading the National League in strikeouts with 92.

Contrast that with last fall's performance against those same Yanks (and the same pitchers), when the Duke batted .345, drove home eight runs and clouted four homers.

"I've finally learned to make the pitchers come to me," he says.

It's proof why managers will stick with a ball player of natural endowments long beyond their normal run of patience. Some, like Dick Wakefield, Rex Barney—to name a couple—never made it. For them there's always a Duke Snider.

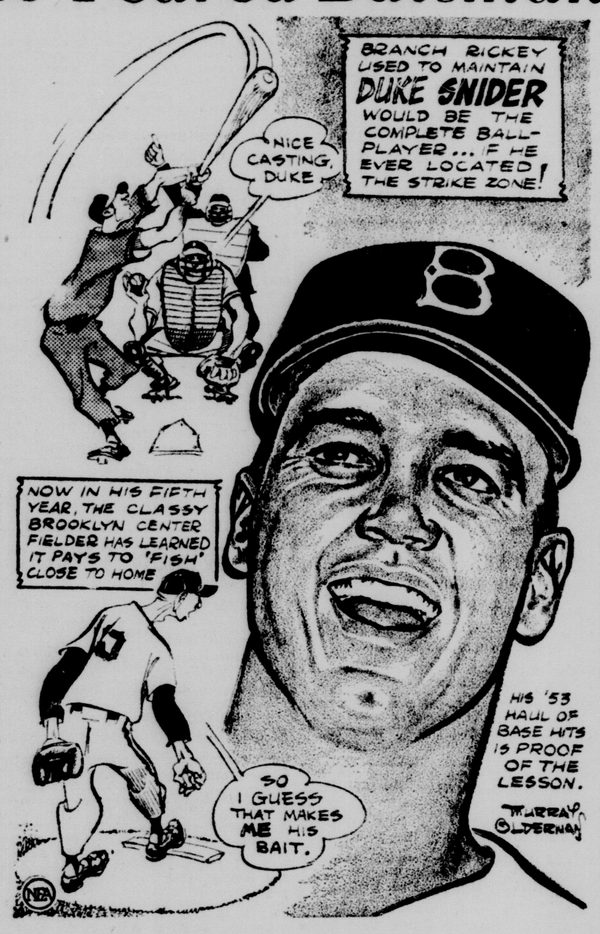

* * *

Not that The Duke has been exactly a bust in Brooklyn these last four years. Possessed with marvelous wrist action, he's banged out 104 home runs, driven home an average of 98 tallies per season and blanketed center field as well as any outfielder in the majors. Who'll forget the stumbling, hurtling catch he made on Yogi Berra in the '52 Series?

Still as recently as 1950 he had to be removed from the main Dodger party on a spring junket when Branch Rickey announced, "I am sending Snider back to Vero Beach to find the location of the strike zone." he had to be benched in mid-season of 1952.

It's much nicer, Charley Dressen agrees, to have the young man they once named as Stan Musial's heir apparent as The Man act like it.

In fact, The Duke acts like he's not even going to wait for Musial to slow down before he takes over as the best in the National League.

Despite Hot Springs Turmoil, Dixie Accepts Negro Players

By MERCER BAILEY

ATLANTA, May 16 (AP) — Last months a dipsute over two Negro pitchers threatened to cause the break up of a Class C league in the heart of Dixie.

To keep harmony, the Hot Springs club of the Cotton States League optioned the pitchers, brothers Jim and Leander Tugerson, before the season opened.

But the racial squabble is not typical of baseball in the south—not any more.

Every night in almost every state below the Mason-Dixon line, you can find Negro and white players on the diamonds together.

The spreading practice of mixed teams has generated interest, but few incidents. Fans, generally, accept members of both races for what they are—professionals entertaining them with their baseball talents. They judge the players, by and large, on ability and performance rather than on the color of their skin.

There have been isolated cases of protests over the use of Negroes. For example, only one complaint was reported by the management of the St. Petersburg Saints of the Class B Florida-International League. That was a woman fan who was unhappy because her afvorite white player of the past season had been sold.

No organized protests have been noted.

The Class A South Atlantic League celebrated its 50th anniversary by dropping the racial bars. Jacksonville has three Negroes in its lineup and Savannah has two. All have turned in good performances to date and have been well received all around the league.

Sam Wolfson, chairman of the board of the Jacksonville Club, says the Negroes are partly responsible for an increase in attendance. He estimated that where an verage of 300-400 Negro fans used to turn out, the club nov draws 500-600.

But he said the major reason for an increase in both Negro and white fans is that Jacksonville is leading the league after several unsuccessful seasons.

Savannah, which is buried in seventh place, has noted little change in overall attendance, but Negro fans are turning out in greater numbers.

There has been no critical reaction to the use of Negroes in the Class B Piedmont League, and club owners credit them with upping gate receipts considerably.

Dallas of the Class AA Texas League broke tradition last year with pitcher Dave Hoskins, now graduated to Cleveland. Now every league which includes Texas teams has Negroes.

Howard Green, president of the Class B Big State League, says: "If the Negroes are good players, they are extremely popular with the fans and boost attendance. Baseball has long been a melting pot for various nationalities and creeds. It is one of the world's most democratic institutions. We believe that the time is here when the player is accepted for what he can do on the field in helping his club win games. Naturally, this is helpful at the box office."

The Cotton States circuit, which includes teams in Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, is the only one in which an attempt to introduce Negroes touched off a public furore. And in that instance league officials, not the fans, kicked up the fuss.

A Set-Gun Injures Woman Near Tarkio

TARKIO, Mo. — Use of an illegal device to take coyotes for bounty resulted in a serious injury for an innocent mushroom hunter, reports Conservation Agent Bill Noland of this district.

A local woman gathering mushrooms stopped to pick up what she through to be a mechanical pencil only to have the object explode in her hand causing a severe wound. Agent Noland took the woman to a doctor for treatment, and then investigated the area with the county sheriff.

The cause of the wounding was an illegal "set-gun", outlawed in Missouri because of its deadliness. Noland said that this "set-gun", fortunately for the victim, was loaded with a .38 caliber propelling charge and not cyanide as is usual.

Similar devices are sometimes used in the west where other animals and humans are not likely to stumble onto them, but in most states they have been banned as dangerous to domestic animals and people.

Busman Plans Hunting Trip In Far North

A big game hunting trip is planned by A. B. Fletcher of the Des Moines, Springfield and Southern Stage Lines for the last part of August and first of September in the extreme northern British Columbia on the Yukon border. The hunt is to take place in the Cassair Mountains.

Several Sedalians have already indicated they plan on making the trip accomodating not more than 20 men. Fletcher is endeavoring to get as many Sedalians to make the trip as possible, and early reports are at least ten from here will make the trek up the Alaskan Highway.

Bill Longhurst, an old timer on the Alaskan Highway, was the first guide to work from the new highway. He recently has been assigned a new 80-mile wide territory which area has several small lakes suitable for landing of pontoon air planes, enabling hunters to reach the various camps in a short time after their arrival at mile post 637 on the highway. The flights will be made from Watson Lake in the Yukon Territory.

Longhurst notified Fletcher the new territory is virgin country with ample big game such as grizzly, black bear, moose, caribou, mountain sheep and goat. However, there is an additional fee on mountain sheep, grizzly, and caribou, goat and black bear. But a bounty is also paid on all wolves killed.

According to Fletcher hunters have a choice of two ways to the hunting camps, the pontoon planes or by pack horse from the highway. Most likely most of the local men giving thought to the trip will travel by plane.

One of the stage lines coaches is being converted for the trip by Fletcher. Reclining chairs are being rearranged, ice boxes placed at the rear and sleeping accomodations for the bus drivers. The first leg of the journey will be from Des Moines to Edmonton, for the first over-night stop, and then straight on to the hunting grounds.

For those who care not for hunting there will be plenty of trout fishing, Fletcher reported.

It will be a 3,200 mile trip into the northern part of British Columbia. The schedule has been arranged so the hunters will arrive at their camps on Sept. 1, the day hunting season opens. Fifteen days will be spent in the hunting area, after which the trip either into Alaska, or back home will be started, all depending on the "frame of mind' the hunters are in.

The Sedalia Air Force Base team will be host at Liberty Park, this afternoon, when they meet the Versailles Merchants in a Central Missouri League contest. Game time has been set at 2:30 p. m.

It will be the first league game to be played on the Liberty Park diamond this season.

Bill Bainbridge, ace hurler for the SAFB, will be on the mound. Bainbridge last Sunday sent 17 Sportsmen to the bench on strikes in a game played at Knob Noster.

There will be no admission to the game, T/Sgt. Richard T. Halahan, coach of the Base team announced.

The game originally was scheduled for last Wednesday, but was postponed because of bad weather.

Taking the mound for the Sportsmen will be either Red Hayden or Bill Hawley, with "Gabby" Hays behind the plate. Jeffers or Rols will pitch for the Airmen.

The Sportsmen have no game on the calendar for Sunday.

Leaders Play CMSC 9 Here At 8 Tonight

College performers from CMSC will provide the opposition for the Sedalia Schlitz Leaders tonight on the Center Park diamond when the local softball club takes the field in search of its third victory of the season.

Coach Frank Luecks Leaders dropped their first contest of the year last Thursday night in Jefferson City when Bud Vanloo sparked a 9-2 win with a four-hit mound performance. One of Sedalia's hits was a home run by Paul Evans.

Warrensburg is expected to field another strong club, with several stars back from last year's outfit.

Harry Meyer and John Swishers will form the opening battery for the Schlitz team.

Goldbug Star Back In Town For A Visit

Dr. John Schrandt, Hutchinson, Kan., who played baseball in Sedalia in the early 1900s as a member of the Sedalia Goldbugs, was here, with Mrs. Schrandt for the weekend visiting friends.

Dr. Schrandt, during the time he played with the Sedalia club, was studying medicine and attended college in Kansas City.

When with the Goldbugs, he played with such stars as Dick Rohn, first baseman and powerhitter for the Sedalia club, and "Dummy" Curtis, a pitcher who could throw either fast or slow balls on batsmen and had one of the most effective drop-curves of any pitcher of that time, either in "pro" ball or among collegians. Others on the club familiar to many fans of that day included: "Dummy" Burson, Henry Ford, Eddie McDill and "Billy" White.

Dr. Schrandt, "Big John," as he was called, was a crack catcher and that's what it really took to handle the in-and-out benders served up by Curtis.

Dr. and Mrs. Schrandt make visits to Sedalia nearly every year, and he says that he always holds a warm and lingering spot in his heart for this city and its people. He says some of the happiest days of his life were spent here and the hospitality and friendship that he enjoyed has never been forgotten.

15-Point Deer Roams Near Prairie Home

PRAIRIE HOME, Mo.—The deer in Cooper County probably is growing in size and certainly is growing in antlers. George W. Schilb, a farmer near Prairie Home, found that out when his tractor rolled over a 15-point rack of antlers while Schilb was plowing.

The farmer reported the rack to Conservation Agent Stuesse, who said it was perfect — except for the point which broke when it went through a tractor tire. This was the second rack found on the Schilb's place, and he hopes to recoup his loss by bagging a deer this fall.

The Hudson Hornet—America's Stock-Car Champion, is a crowd-stopper on any street

It's the country's top performer—and a premium value at trade-in time

Standard trim and other specifications and accessories subject to change without notice.

CERTAINLY, the Hudson Hornet is a lovely car to look at—gorgeous inside and out. And its beauty is more than skin deep.

This rugged performer holds the stock-car championship in all three major racing associations—and a touch of your toe to the gas pedal will tell you why!

The Hornet's dazzling performance comes from Hudson's sturdy, long-lasting, high-compression engine; and from the fact that it has the lowest center of gravity among American cars—because of exclusive "step-down" design. Why don't you visit us and try a Hudson Hornet?

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Dorothy Dove, Andrew Simon

St. Patrick's Catholic Church was the scene of the impressive formal wedding of Miss Dorothy Catherine Dove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Dove, Green Ridge, and Mr. Andrew J. Simon, son of Mr. Jacob Simon, Sedalia, and the late Mrs. Simon, which took place at nine o'clock in the morning, May 2. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. J. Nolan before an altar decorated with palms, bouquets of white carnations and snapdragons and lighted candles.

Miss Josephine White, organist, played the traditional wedding marches. Miss Alphonsine Miles sang "Ave Maria".

The bride who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a floor length gown of white satin. The fitted bodice which buttoned down the front with small satin covered buttons featured a Peter Pan collar and long pointed sleeves. The satin skirt was designed with a front panel of lace. A crown of apple blossoms held her fingertip veil in place. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, which was a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a cascade bouquet of a dozen white carnations.

Miss Irene Dove served her sister as maid of honor. She was attired in a formal of pink net over taffeta. The bodice was designed with a pleated yoke and small puffed sleeves. A triple strand of pearls accented the yoke and she carried a cascade bouquet of dark pink carnations. She wore a net bandeaux in her hair.

The bridesmaid, Miss Tillie Simon, wore a floor length gown of light green net and taffeta fashioned identical to the honor attendant's. Her bouquet was of light pink carnations.

Mr. Tony Simon served his brother as best man and Mr. Ralph Dove, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Ushers were Mr. Alfred Dove and Mr. Norman Dove, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Dove chose for her daughter's wedding a gray suit accented with navy and white accessories. Her ensemble was completed with a corsage of white carnations.

At noon a dinner was served to thirty guests at the home of the bride's parents. The home was decorated with pink and green crepe paper streamers and white wedding bells. The table was centered with a three tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and flanked on either side with lighted tapers in crystal holders.

Miss Lillian Staley, Miss Alice Day and Miss Juanita Day, all cousins of the bride served the noon meal. Miss Delores Day, also a cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

A wedding dance was held that night at Convention Hall. Miss Mildred Bahner was in charge of the guest book at the dance.

When the couple left on their honeymoon for Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois, the new Mrs. Simon was wearing a gray suit with navy and pink accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Green Ridge High School and prior to her marriage was a dental assistant in the office of Dr. W. E. Pearl.

Mr. Dove graduated from Smith-Cotton and served with the Army in World War II. He is engaged in farming.

Don't "call the kettle black" and put it in the trash barrel when that old granite enameled tea pot, coffee pot or teakettle becomes chipped and not usable for cooking. Instead, sand the chipped places with medium sandpaper and then give the whole teapot a coat of gold enamel. You now have an attractive planter to hang on a crane in your window.

A large coffee pot or tea kettle painted with copper bronze paint and filled with ivy, placed on the floor in the fireplace opening gives a new glow to the hearth during the summer months.

WEDDING FLOWERS!

The groom pays for the bride's bouquet, corsages for the mothers and boutonnieres for himself, the best man and the fathers. However the bride usually consults the florist and selects flowers and a style of bouquet to complement her wedding gown. It is also customary for the groom to order a going-away corsage for the bride: something to harmonize with her ensemble is considered in better taste today than an all-white corsage with blue ribbon.

In Catholic ceremonies, an extra bouquet is frequently provided in the sacristy of the church. The bride places it on a side altar.

PFEIFFER'S, Sedalia's Wedding Florists, carry a complete wedding accessory department. Candelabras, White Candles, Ring Pillows, Kneeling Bench, Wedding Bells of Sarna, Cake Knife and a most complete and detailed variety of flowers, baskets and bouquets for the entire wedding party.

SUMMER LINGERIE is becoming increasingly more interesting. Cotton PLISSE is new, pretty and of course requires no ironing. For the career woman, the housewife and many others it is the ideal material. However under organdy, nylon and other very sheer garments it can't be used too successfully. To take its place there is of course cotton batiste with fancy trim. Also acetate and rayon mixtures are being shown with handsome lace trim that flatter your sheer garments. One new item is a slip with lace to the waist in both front and back that is lined with crepe. The straps are made of lace and it is indeed handsome to wear under sheer, sheer tops. Bras usually offer quite a problem in summer, however, this season there is a wide selection. Strapless bras are better styled and made of materials that wash well and hold their shape. Fresh, well kept lingerie is very important in summer so replenish your supply often.

Congressman Demands Capitol Lawn Be Mowed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Bender (R-O.) says he's disturbed because the lawns of the U. S. capitol and the neighboring Botanical Gardens look "just like a cow pasture."

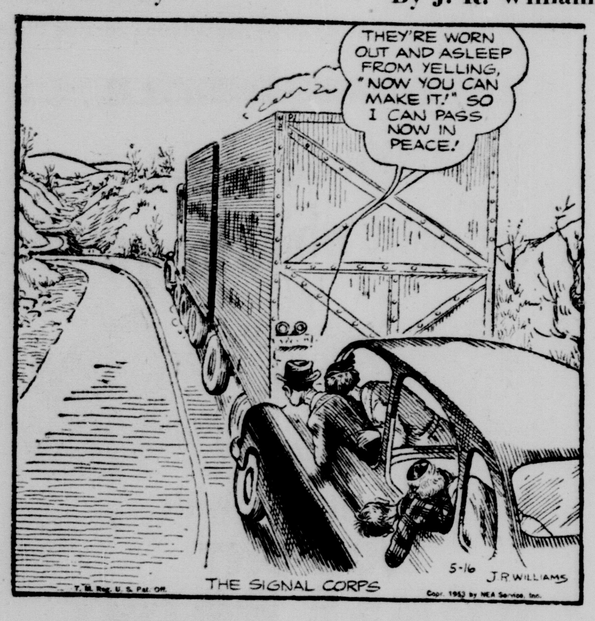

Bender said in an interview he called Botanical Gardens officials and demanded they put some men to work mowing the lawn.

"I'm ashamed to show people from back home around the Capitol grounds," he said.

"If you don't do something about those lawns, I might get out there myself with a lawn mower."

Closeup Of Top Jet Ace:

Fernandez Is 'Comic on the Ground, Real Tiger in the Air

By EDWARD R. KENNEDY
NEA Special Correspondent

FORWARD FIGHTER STRIP, Korea — America's top MIG-killer is a rollicking, boisterous comic with a sharp-shooting eye and sharp tongue.

He's Capt. Manuel J. Fernandez, Jr., 27, of Miami, Fla., known here as "Pete" or "The Tiger."

With 13 Russian-built MIG-15s destroyed, Fernandez officially became the world's greatest jet ace. Victim No. 13 topped Col. Royal Baker's 12.

But so confident a fighter is

SERIOUS FERNANDEZ: "Aw, I'm just good . . ."

"The Tiger" that he already had virtually given away three kills. So say his buddies in the 4th Fighter-Interceptor Wing. They say Pete credited three MIGs to his wingmen; he's that kind of guy.

"He's a comic on the ground but a real tiger in the air," says Pete's commanding officer, Maj. William Cosby of Painter, Va.

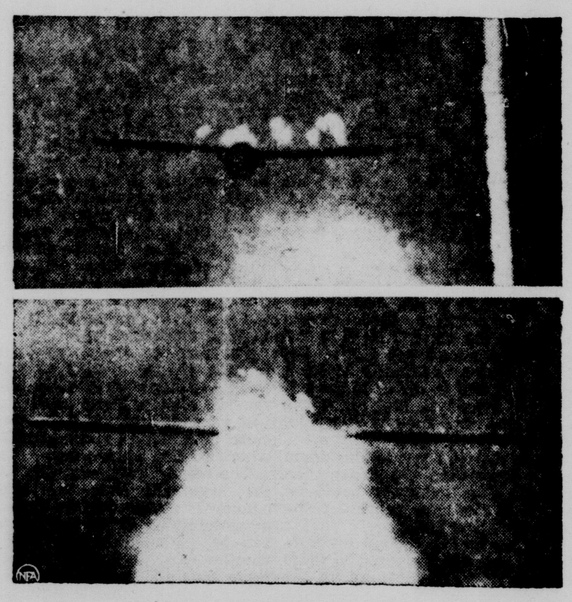

"And I should know. When we came over together I suggested a friendly little bet just to make things interesting. It was to be $50 a MIG.

"I've got two so far and he's got my month's pay. But do you know what the guy is doing now? He's tutoring me to improve my own shooting so I can win some of my money back.

"Pete's eyesight is the clue. He can see more looking through a small gunsight than most people can with their heads out of the cockpit."

Fernandez, a dark - haired, moustached veteran of World War II, grins when the talk gets around to his phenomenal shooting.

"I was an instructor in the last show," he says. "I enlisted in '43 right after I got out of Miami High School. But I never got a day of combat. They kept me instructing the whole war.

FERNANDEZ KILL: Gun camera shows how his bursts "just dance along into the fuselage, then everything goes up in smoke."

"I kept telling those kids I knew what I was talking about. Now maybe they'll believe me."

Ask Pete what he's got which accounts for his record and he comes back with a disarming smile:

"Aw, I'm just good." Then, after a thoughtful pause, ". . . and I like to fight. When it's getting too rough for everybody else it's just right for me."

This comes in a "shy, reserved" tone only loud enough for 20 or 30 other people to hear. Such uninhibited boastfulness ordinarily would make a pilot the heel of the squadron, but "on Pete it's different."

He's a character and he gets away with it. There isn't a more popular guy in the wing.

Everybody has a story about him. One tells how he tore into 40 MIGs and bagged two before they knew what had struck them. Another how when his wing tank wouldn't shake loose in battle he kept right on fighting and bagged another MIG before heading for home.

The young pilots worship him. They say his helping hand has saved many an inexperienced pilot when the going got tough.

Once he maneuvered a MIG around until the Red pilot had no alternative to crashing into the side of a hill.

He celebrated the Communists' May Day by repeating this feat with two MIGs chasing him. By violent evasive action at tremendous speed he made the two planes on his tail go out of control and they were last seen spinning in.

Another time, he pretended his plane was wounded when a MIG rushed up behind him. At the split-second point when the MIG pilot should have started firing, Pete downed his flaps to slow up his plane. As the surprised MIG rushed past him, it was blasted to earth in flames.

"He shouldn't have believed me," said Pete with mock sorrow.

His constant companion on the ground is Lt. Jack Lake, in civilian life a Lancaster, O., newspaperman. Lake's job includes the study of the gun camera films of the pilots' hits.

"Every one of Pete's kills looks alike," he affirms. "The six second bursts from his six 50's start down one wing toward the center. They just dance along, into the fuselage and the tailpipe, and then everything goes up in smoke."

Pete, a bachelor, is in love with his Sabrejet. He often sits in his plane in the early hours of the morning, just to be ready in case radar picks up MIGs crossing the Yalu.

After he knocks a few more MIGs down, the aces' ace admits he'd like to have a visit with his mother, Mrs. Effie Fernandez, in Miami. Then he and Lt. Lake want to spend a 30-day leave in Cuba.

Their current warning is:

"Look out, MIGs—then look out Cuba. We're coming over!"

LAUGHING FERNANDEZ: ". . . and I like to fight."

One-Man-Party Proves Strong In the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maybe the two-party system in the Senate is a thing of the past. The new third party—consisting of one man, Wayne Morse of Oregon—is seething with activity. And in the light of Morse's vocal accomplishments you can be dead sure this party is going to be heard from.

Morse planned to take the floor today, in fact, for another of his weekly "Committee Reports of the Independent Party," and he promised in advance he would speak "at some length."

Coming from the man who recently broke all Senate records with a 22 hour and 26 minute blockbuster against the offshore oil lands bill, this is not a promise to be taken lightly.

Morse gave the Senate a preview of today's address in a sort of warmup last Tuesday. Nobody held a stop watch on him, but his remarks added up to 34 columns in the Congressional Record, or about 20,000 words.

The Oregon senator was elected as a Republican but broke away from the GOP last year to support Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson in the presidential election. He didn't join the Democrats, though, but declared himself an independent and, as such, a third party in the Senate.

Being outnumbered 95 to 1 doesn't discourage the slender, sprucely dressed Oregonian in the slightest.

He told the Senate "an increasing number of people" in the country are showing interest in his weekly reports.

And he announced he would keep on making these reports "until such time as more than a million and a half people in the state of Oregon are given equal representation in the Senate."

The term "Crossroads of the Pacific" is applied to the Hawaiian Islands.

STAMP OF A SPEEDSTER—To commemorate the 20th running of Italy's classic 1000-mile cross-country auto race, the Italian government has issued this new 25-lire stamp. The colors are violet and white.

ELIZABETH the Queen

By Marion Crawford
Former Governess to Her Majesty

DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE

A Royal romance has no privacy. While motoring, and even while taking short walks together, Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten always were in the limelight.

PLENTY of romances have been written about the loves of Princesses, but the settings are foreign and strange, and the Princesses are nothing at all like real Princesses.

The story of the factory girl who is loved by a Lord and becomes a Marchioness can hardly thrill a girl to whom Marchionesses must curtsy.

The love of a real Princess is important not only to herself and to the man she chooses, but also to millions of other people. It is an affair of State.

And yet, as we have seen, it can be truly a love affair. It certainly is so with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

In the days when Princess Elizabeth first questioned me about love and marriage, there was no thought in anyone's mind that she would ever be married to the young Prince of Greece and Denmark, who could speak neither Greek nor Danish, but was known to be a first-class cricketer and a keen yachtsman.

That the Heiress to the Throne would stay unmarried was unthinkable. The first Queen Elizabeth went unwed throughout her life, but times had changed since then.

So our Princess Elizabeth in due course of events would marry—but whom? The field could not be wide. Only a few can be considered when the question of choosing a husband for a future Queen arises.

There was a great deal of guesswork and speculation, but from my own observation I must say now that no serious effort was made to choose a husband for Princess Elizabeth.

The choice was her own.

Naturally, as any girl growing into womanhood does, Queen Elizabeth often spoke to me of love and marriage. Far from avoiding the subject, I welcomed it.

It seemed to me that at this time, long before her engagement, such a discussion would be of help to her only as it was then possible to talk of marriage as woman to woman detachedly and without the introduction of any personalities.

Whenever she asked me questions, I tried to answer as truthfully and clearly as possible. In her own circle, she had seen happy marriages, and she was anxious that her own marriage, when the time came, should follow this pattern.

"What, Crawfie," she would ask, "makes a person fall in love?"

Then I would try to explain to her the deep common interests that can not only first draw a man and a woman together immediately, but hold them together for life.

"When you marry," I once told her, "you must not expect the honeymoon to last forever. Sooner or later you will meet the stresses and strains of everyday life. You must not expect your husband to be constantly at your side or always to receive from him the extravagant affection of the first few months.

"A man has his own men friends, hobbies, and interests in which you cannot and will not want to share. A man's life is built on the foundation of a happy marriage. A good wife realizes that and will help him every way she can."

The Princess listened attentively to these words. But she had read and heard there were homes without that atmosphere of love and affection which had surrounded her all her life.

• • •

ONE morning I found her depressed. The newspapers were full of the divorce of an acquaintance of hers.

"Why do people do it, Crawfie?" she asked me. "How can they break up a home when there are children to consider?"

It was difficult for her, who had never seen anything but the perfection of her parents' home life, to realize that some personalities are incompatible, some homes unhappy.

But since there were such people, she asked, why did they get married in the first place?

She was deeply distressed by this. I tried to explain to her that many marriages had been contracted in wartime, on impulse alone, without reasonable reflection or true love.

I tried to explain that the shortage of houses made marriage difficult for some people. It is hard for a Princess brought up in a Palace with endless rooms to appreciate that. But she tried to.

We must remember now that a Royal Princess has nothing like the same freedom to fall in love and marry that most other girls have. Most of the romances she reads are about a world that she does not and can never know, about people of different backgrounds who meet and part, quarrel and make it up again, as a Princess, trained to self-control, cannot do.

When I hear of Hollywood stars who complain that successful marriage is impossible for people like themselves, "Living in a goldfish bowl" and never having a minute to themselves, I stop and think of the much greater trials Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip have had to face in their marriage.

Drew Pearson Washington Merry-Go-Round

Army's Atomic Cannon To Make Costly Debut

(Ed. Note—Drew Pearson today begins a series of studies of one of the most important subjects facing the nation—how to save money and balance the budget without injuring national defense.)

WASHINGTON—Chief pride of the Army is the atomic cannon now being tested in Nevada. For approximately two years the Army has been preparing for this test, even broke the story of atomic artillery before the secret was supposed to be known.

However, without detracting from the importance of land forces or the gallantry of the doughboy, the cold, sober facts indicate that atomic artillery is largely pride and a waste of the taxpayers' money.

What the public does not know as the atomic-artillery experiments take place in Nevada is that the first time the Army pulls the trigger its costs the taxpayers $7,000,000. That's the amount of money that will dissolve in the resulting mushroom cloud over Frenchman's flat.

After that first burst, the taxpayers will dish out $3,000,000 each time an atomic shell is fired. The initial amount of $7,000,000 covered the cost of the first experiments, but it will take $3,000,000 after that to pay for each atomic shell.

All this has caused a fierce controversy inside the Atomic Energy Commission and inside the Pentagon over whether atomic artillery is worth all the expense. Because the unfortunate fact is that atomic artillery burns precious fissionable material as if it were as cheap and plentiful as common black powder. Furthermore 90 per cent of this fissionable material goes to waste, as against only 30 per cent waste in an atomic bomb.

This is why some atomic experts charge that the only reason for atomic artillery is to let the Army get in on the atomic act. So far, the Army has been on the outside of the atomic picture looking in.

And the Army has been so anxious to get into the picture that they proposed to the Atomic Energy Commission that atomic shells for the current Nevada test be carried across the continental United States alternately by boat, truck and rail in order to dramatize the event to the American public and squeeze out every bit of publicity possible.

When the AEC turned this down as too dangerous, the Army then proposed that a dummy bomb be carried across the continent instead of a live bomb.

In other words, though the unification act was supposed to unite the Army and Navy, it set up one new branch of the service—the Air Force—and has increased the rivalry of all three.

At a recent meeting of military atomic experts, the Army representative was asked point - blank whether the Army would risk stockpiling atomic shells near the front during a military engagement, for fear the enemy might overrun the front line and capture the $3,000,000 shells.

The Army replied that the shells would be kept safe well behind the lines and flown to the front as needed.

This highlights the fact that if the Army is going to fly atomic shells up to the front, there is no reason why a plane can't fly a little farther and drop an A-bomb over the enemy instead of landing the plane, unloading the atomic shell, putting it in a cannon and firing it the remaining few miles.

Air Force and atomic officials argue that an airplane might as well carry a bomb—which is much cheaper than an atomic shell—over enemy lines and drop it in the first place, thus avoiding the trouble of landing fields, loading and unloading, etc.

Furthermore, the Army intends to use spotter planes to direct atomic-artillery fire. This means that the spotter plane itself might just as well drop an A-bomb instead of directing ground artillery where to fire an A-shell.

The Army counters this with the argument that the atomic cannon is more accurate than atomic bombing from the air and can be executed in any kind of whether. To this atomic scientists reply that planes can drop an A-bomb with 150 feet of a target—which is just about as close as atomic cannon can hit, certainly close enough for such a devastating explosion.

They also point out that atomic shells should never be fired in bad weather since wind and rain might become contaminated and carry deadly radiation back to our own troops. In Nevada, for instance, the Atomic Energy Commission will not permit an atomic test if there's the slightest bit of bad weather.

The Army also contends that the atomic cannon is mobile—rather a strange argument regarding an artillery piece so heavy and cumbersome that it can cross few of the world's existing bridges and roads to reach most areas.

"Certainly the atomic cannon isn't more mobile than a plane," snorted one scientist when he heard the Army argument.

Despite these drawbacks, the Army has asked for 100 atomic cannon and a large but secret stockpile of shells. And while the Navy and Air Force have been slashed to the bone, the Army is the only branch of the service which has been increased to the tune of $1,500,000,000.

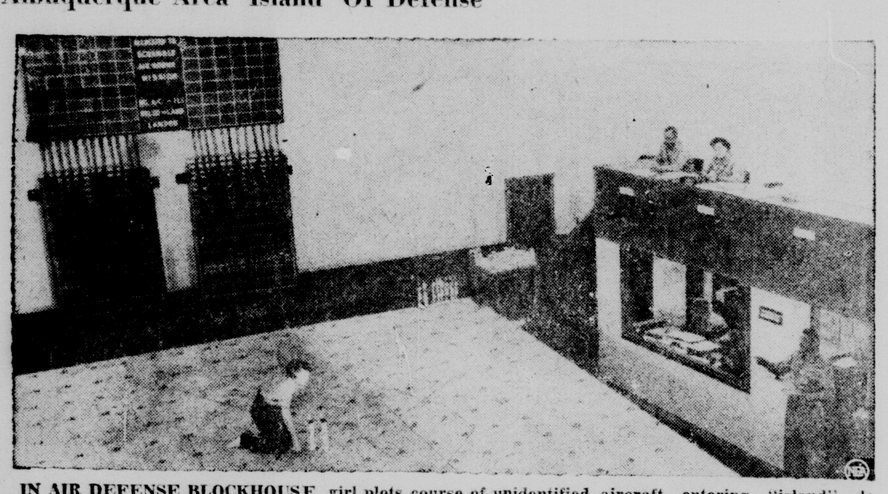

This has caused some Pentagon officials from other services to remark that they wish President Eisenhower had served in their branch rather than in the Army.

However, the fact remains that if the military budget is to be cut without endangering national security, it must be cut not according to Army or Navy pride, but according to weapon efficiency. It looks as if the atomic cannon is not worth the tremendous outlay of dollars.

Note—When the submarine was first developed, that the Army, not the Navy, build and operate submarines, thus preserving the Army's historic responsibility for coastal defense. The Army's jealousy over its responsibilities has been going on ever since.

How Air Force Guards U.S. 'Atomic Heart'

Albuquerque Area 'Island' Of Defense

IN AIR DEFENSE BLOCKHOUSE, girl plots course of unidentified aircraft entering "island" defense surrounding atomic installations in New Mexico. The "tote board" in background flashes information received at the blockhouse from all radar surveillance sites.

UNKNOWN PLANE'S COURSE is plotted on radarscope of the 135th Aircraft Control and Warning nite at Albuquerque as an officer of the 34th Air Division (Defense) instructs a student in methods of detection, identification and warning.

By DOYLE KLINE
NEA Correspondent

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Guarding the heart of the U. S. atomic weapons effort is a tense and astonishingly efficient air defense.

The story of that defense can now be told. The installations which gave birth to the atomic and hydrogen bombs have been made into a defensive "island" in the overall U. S. plan to avert a possibility of an atomic "Pearl Harbor."

Within a 100 - mile radius of Albuquerque lie the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, where atomic weapons were born; Sandia Base, which includes a nuclear weapons school and nuclear weapon "hardware" center; the Air Force Special Weapons Center, and the Atomic Energy Commission offices which conduct nuclear weapons tests.

A successful atomic attack on this area could be disastrous to the U. S. ability to wage atomic warfare.

And the defense must work fast.

The job belongs to the 34th Air Division (Defense), which likens itself to a spider web of radar surveillance stations.

The zones they cover overlap so that all portions of the sky are searched every second, 24 hours a day. Telephone lines and powerful radio transmitters connect these sites with 34th headquarters in a windowless concrete blockhouse at Kirtland Air Force Base, Albuquerque.

Into the tightly-guarded blockhouse flows an uninterrupted stream of information. Nothing that flies more than five miles an hour goes undetected. Once, through some trick of radar, a Greyhound bus rolling toward Albuquerque appeared to be flying. It was "intercepted" by two flabbergasted F-86 pilots.

Even the "island" defense has special priority areas. No aircraft, identified or unidentified, flies toward Los Alamos without interception except Carco Air Service, the only airline permitted to land at the atomic city.

What the Sabre pilots do when such an interception takes place is classified by the Air Force under "rules of engagement," but it is known the intruder must change course, land, or be shot down. Not long ago a Montana pilot was forced down by the F-86s when he accidentally flew toward Los Alamos.

All planes flying into the area must cross the line of identification within five minutes of the time designated on their flight plans, at the altitude estimated and within 10 miles of the predicted entry point.

If they don't, they become "unknown" the instant they show up on radar. An intruder plane will be spotted within 10 seconds after entering the defense area.

The 34th sets a time limit of five minutes from "initial pickup" to "identification" of an intruder plane. In that time it must establish a location, plot a course, altitude and speed, and check all known flight plans. It does the job, on the average, in three and a half minutes.

If the plane cannot be identified, the blockhouse orders a "scramble" of F-86s from Kirtland. Time limit from scramble signal to airborne is five minutes. The 34th has whittled the total time from initial pickup to airborne to seven and a half minutes.

Pilots of these interceptors are combat veterans, including jet aces of Korean combat against Russian-built MIG-15s. Scrambles average six to eight a day.

At the head of the 34th are Col. William A. Matheny, commanding; Col. H. P. Huglin, vice commander, and Maj. R. F. Zachmann, director of combat operations. They spent months molding the 34th into an outfit which has never been caught napping, despite repeated attempts by other Air Force units to penetrate the area undetected.

"We once had 24 interceptions in 24 hours," Col. Huglin relates. "We told the command which owned the planes that every one of them would have been shot down if they had represented an enemy in wartime."

Another time, a transient jet pilot flew over Albuquerque at 30,000 feet. He couldn't see the ground or the many mountain peaks beneath him because of a raging dust storm. The 34th used its radar information to guide him down.

One of the reasons the 34th can boast such a record is its "radar scanners graduate school." Airmen and WAFs come here with basic training in radar and in 10 days are turned into expert scanners, plotters and "tellers."

Most scrambles result when airline pilots, military crews, and careless civilians — for all are guilty at times — fail to turn in adequate flight plans, fly into prohibited areas, or blunder along ignorant of their positions.

Civilians are subject to two-year prison terms and $10,000 fines or both for violators. Military pilots can be court-martialed.

The 34th is on combat status. Each scramble is "for keeps." There's no telling when a friendly-appearing plane might be the one carrying a sneak atomic bomb.

The 34th's job is to prevent that.

BOOKS FOR THE BARON

CALDECOTT arrived in a police car just after lunch, and was soon busy with the books. Meanwhile, Gadden had a talk with Bristow.

"I ought to tell you, Mr. Bristow," said Gadden formally, "that I'm not happy about Mr. Mannering's part in this. Since I guessed he was the man to break into Marchant House, I've wondered a great deal about him. Could he be gaining time for himself."

Bristow grinned. "You mean, is he Fenner's agent?"

"That's it," said Gadden dourly. "I've lived in this part of the world a long time. I've always known the Lithoms. There are men who won't stop at anything, not even murder, to save a family's name. There's some mystery about the Earl's death, as well as about his daughter—and Mannering, a distant relative, might set himself above the law to protect their reputation. These people haven't really stopped believing in a form of divine right—if you'd lived around here as long as I, you'd know it. This Mannering, he has a manner with him I don't always like. He was outside when Mary Scott was kidnaped—"

"But he installed her in the library," objected Bristow. "He asked me to send Longley here too."

Higby appeared in the study, where they were talking. Bristow looked at him frostily. "Well?"

"There is a telephone call for you, sir. Will you take it in here?"

"Yes," said Bristow. "Put it through."

Higby went out, closing the door softly. Gadden rubbed his bulky chin. There was something about Higby which reminded him of the late Earl.

The telephone rang shortly, and Bristow lifted the receiver. It was the surgeon of St. Malden Hospital.

"How is Sergeant Longley?" Bristow asked.

"Oh, he'll pull through," said the surgeon. "He asked for you. He wasn't really responsible for what he said, but you ought to know."

"Yes, what was it?"

"He kept saying that he had some information about a man named Mannering. And he mentioned a woman named Mary a great deal. It's just possible that he means that one or the other attacked him. I thought it might help you in your investigations, and in any case I promised him that I would tell you."

"I see," said Bristow heavily. "Thank you very much."

• • •

MANNERING went up to see Caldecott, who appeared to be reading one of the old books, and looked up blankly when Mannering asked him whether he had discovered anything.

Caldecott smiled, impishly. "So impatient! I have looked. Come. See this." He opened a book to the title page, which was beautifully illustrated. "This, my friend, is not the original. The color faded, new ink was used—paint, I mean. Yes. Now beneath that new coat of paint—"

"Yes?" Mannering asked sharply.

"Nothing," murmured Caldecott. "Oh, I have made sure. So! I try another gambit—I have taken all the titles and authors' names, and tried to find a code. But—"

"No code," said Mannering dryly.

"No, John, not yet. One thing I do know. Wilberforce knew little about books. Everything here—" he waved an arm around the great library—"shows me that."

Mannering went into his bedroom.

Lorna looked around from the dressing table. "Hello, darling." And then he saw that she was holding a sheet of notepaper by one corner—holding it gingerly, as if she were anxious not to touch the back or front of the paper. She held out the letter.

Mannering took it and read it.

It was written in pencil, in block lettering, and on Lithom Hall paper.

If you want to see the girl alive again, be in the library, alone, at 1:15 tonight.

Lorna spoke: "I'm coming with you."

"No," said Mannering. "We both can't stick our necks out. If I'm not back in half an hour, yell out of the window. The grounds are sticky with police."

She was desperately anxious to be with him, but gave way. He kissed her and started to leave.

• • •

OUT of the quiet of the room came a soft ticking—the small clock by the side of the bed. Mannering could see its illuminated dial; the time was eight minutes past one.

He went straight to the library. A light was on in the great room, he could see the faint glow at the sides of the door and the top and bottom. He turned the handle and pushed—and the door yielded.

"Come in, Mannering," a man said. "And don't be rash, I've got a gun."

Mannering stepped into the library.

Higby leaned negligently against a table, with an automatic in his hand. Tied to a chair, and with a scarf around her mouth to prevent her from crying out, was Lady Bream. On the floor, dead or unconscious, was Abel White.

"Close the door and lock it," ordered Higby.

Mannering half-turned, conscious of the growing tension, knowing that if he made a false move now, the footman would shoot. He turned the key and it clicked noisily—but he didn't turn it fully, the door wasn't locked.

Mannering said: "True colors?"

"My little piece this afternoon was just to gain time," said Higby, and grinned; he looked—vicious. "I was assured that you had a lot of influence with the police. Now I've proved it. You must have pleaded with them strongly to stop them from arresting me."

Mannering said: "I was almost in tears."

Odds and Ends By News Staff

Richard's brother, a little older and school age, went on a picnic and Richard did so want to go on a picnic, too.

"I wish I could have a picnic", said Richard and his mother, who works downtown, looked at his grandmother. "Let him have a picnic", she told her mother, and grandmother agreed.

When Richard's mother came home from work that evening she asked if he had had the picnic.

"Yes, I did," said Richard, "In a sack, and I ate ezzer bit of it."

That was the way his brother took his picnic, so Richard's picnic had to be in a sack, too.

"Where did you eat it?" questioned mother.

"Right there on that chair", said the child pointing to a kitchen chair. "And I sat on that box". The box, an old bread box is the favorite seat of Richard and his brother — the family has never yet been able to dispose of it — the children always drag it out again.

"And what did you have to eat?" asked mother.

"Well," said Richard, "I drank my milk and ate a sandwich. Then I ate the other sandwich. Then I ate my banana and cookies — I age ezzer bit of it."

Grandmother nodded smilingly. "He ate ezzer bit of it" and that is something he doesn't do most of the time. But a picnic — in a sack —even on a kitchen chair — well—that is different. Everybody knows you eat everything in sight at a picnic. — H. L.

Momie and daddy were having a little snack before they went to bed and suddenly their small son appeared in the kitchen doorway with his little green truck. He had been asleep but woke up and came on out to the kitchen to find them.

"What is this called?" he asked pointing to the bottom of the truck.

"I think that is called a truck bed," said his mother.

"I'm going to fill the truck bed with eggs," said the child, "and go over a real bumpy road."

"Oh," said his mother, "then you will have scrambled eggs."

But the little boy was one ahead of her. He had thought of that, too. "No," he said, "I'm going to have hard boiled eggs."—H. L.

Sees Dancing Curing Ails of Delinquency

NEW YORK M.ay 16 (AP)—Alicia Alonso, the beautiful Cuban star of Ballet Theatre, has a new use for the dance.

She believes that if every youngster over 12 studied it, many problems of adolescence would disappear and much delinquency would be prevented.

"These youngsters over 12!" she explained. "They burn with all this energy and they don't know what to do. They ask themselves a thousand questions. Why this? Why that? What are they doing? Where are they going?

"I was the same at that age. Then I began to study dancing; and that satisfied everything. The questions melted away. I forgot the world and its problems and things straightened out. I have seen the same results with my daughter, who is now 15, and with the youngsters in the training school."

Mme. Alonso, who looks too young to be the mother of a 15-year-old, is famous in ballet for her memory and extensive repertoire. She came by both through an experience that would have felled most people for good.

As a young dancer, she was threatened with permanent blindness. After delicate operations, she had to lie for a year motionless, except for slight use of her hands.

To pass the time, she rehearsed mentally every step of various major ballet roles. When her husband, Fernando Alonso, visited her each evening, she showed him with finger movements the parts of the role she was practicing and he corrected her mistakes.

In this way—lying almost motionless in the dark—she taught herself some of ballet's most difficult and demanding roles.

More than a year later, when her eyes were healed, she stepped into the role of "Giselle" on four days notice to replace Alicia Markova in a ballet performance at the Metropolitan Opera House.

That season, in which she danced also in "Swan Lake" and "Aurora's Wedding," brought her warm acclaim from critics and took her to the prima donna's pinnacle.

Since then she has danced many times in Europe and South America and has made a number of annual tours as the ballerina star of Ballet Theatre. The troupe leves soon on an eight-month European tour.

SALOME MEETS JOHN THE BAPTIST—It's a scene from Columbia Pictures' "Salome," in color by Technicolor at the Uptown Theatre, starring Rita Hayworth and Stewart Granger and introducing Alan Badel as John. Charles Laughton co-stars. Now playing through Thursday.

Alan Ladd lends his particular, and popular, type of screen action to one of the most reckless legends of the foreign legion in "Desert Legion," starting today at the Fox Theatre. Filmed in Technicolor, the Sahara adventure story co-stars Arlene Dahl, and features Akim Tamiroff and Richard Conte.

Tourists Pour Into Capital With Cameras

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—Tourists are pouring into Washington this week end—as they do every week end in the spring—and attached to every tourist is the inevitable camera.

Nowhere else is there anything quite like it.

A spokesman for the photographic industry said today that, for its size, no other city sells as much film or has as many pictures developed as Washington does in the spring.

A stroll around the capital will show this isn't mere theory.

Young love rolling its eyes . . . boisterous youngsters ignoring their parents' irritated cries "For heaven's sake, stand still!" . . . fat ladies trying to look like thin ladies . . . the conscientious camera bug, backing, backing, in an attempt to get all the Washington Monument in his picture.

In view of this activity, let's look at a few of the rules here for amateur photographers, rules often surprising to visitors.

1. The fellow who expects to get a picture of his congressman busily passing laws will be disappointed. Pictures of the House and Senate in session rarely are permitted.

Even the pros can't work there except on special occasions, such as an opening of Congress or a presidential visit. This rule explains why you never see a picture of one of Washington's most familiar scenes: the House and Senate operating with only a few members on the floor.

2. No picture is permitted of the Supreme Court in session.

3. No pictures inside the White House, either. For that matter, there are restrictions on amateur photographers in a number of government buildings so you had better check before making too many plans.

4. No tripods are allowed on the Capitol grounds. The story is that in the old days commercial photographers so cluttered up the place that the rule barring tripods was put through. It's still there.

But all this should frighten no camera fan. There are plenty of fine buildings, inspiring shrines and beautiful scenery to photograph in Washington.

And Arlington, across the river, and Mt. Vernon, down the Potomac, offer scenes so tempting no camera fan could possibly resist.

One final word of warning:

No standing on your head in front of the Lincoln or Jefferson Memorials.

They are national shrines. The police have strict orders to keep them that way.

Ava Gardner and Gregory Peck shown here in wildest Africa, share starring roles with Susan Hayward in" The Snows of Kilimanjaro," the Technicolor attraction starting Tuesday at the 50 Hiway Drive In Theatre.

TV Network Color

NEW YORK (AP) — When color television gets under way, it won't be necessary that each station of a network add special equipment to broadcast color as long as the signal is coming to it via network. It merely has to relay the signal as originated by the network key station.

This will not hold where a station plans to transmit its own original color program. In that case it will have to install both color cameras and color generating apparatus.

In case of the receiver, special color adapters or receivers will be necessary.

Drenched Brides Protest

TOKYO (AP)—Modern day brides in Kyushu have asked the attorney general's office to do something to halt the old southern Japanese custom of tossing water on the bride as she goes to her wedding. Centuries ago somebody, possibly a prophet, figured that wetting down a bride would bring her luck.

The girls today say they have to put out a lot of yen for a bridal costume, and they don't think it is lucky to have it drenched. The Human Rights Protective Bureau of the attorney general's office is searching the law books for a regulation that might protect the brides.

Bankers Attend Illinois Bank Credit Conference

TIPTON—Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Stratman, along with L. C. Harper, Sturgeon, attended one of the agricultural credit conferences of the Illinois State Bankers Association, on Thursday at Pittsfield, Ill.

Mr. Harper, cashier of the Bank of Sturgeon, is chairman of the agricultural committee of the Missouri Bankers Association, and Mr. Stratman, executive vice-president of the Tipton Farmers Bank, was named chairman of the agriculture forestry chairman of the Missouri Bankers Association convention which he and Mrs. Stratman attended in Kansas City from Monday until Thursday this week. The convention was held at the Muehlebach Hotel.

The trip to the Illinois bankers convention was made to better acquaint the Missouri bankers with what neighboring states are doing in this field.

Mr. Stratman descirbes Pittsfield as being a town of about 3,000 population. The Community Center there where the bankers convention was held was an old home remodeled to office rooms, a kitchen, community and music rooms. The banquet was held there that evening.

Mr. Stratman also tells of seeing Paul H. Lehman who was among Illinois bankers present. Paul is a former Fortuna banker and he is a cousin of Dave Lehman, county collector and Elvin Lehman, county clerk.

Paul is cashier of the First State Bank of Winchester, Ill. He was a member of the panel at the Pittsfield meeting.

RIO'S NOT "GRANDE"—The once mighty Rio Grande River is little more than a series of shallow puddles at Brownsville, Tex. Eva Lee, chosen by her classmates at Texas Southmost College to get evidence of how low the river really is, shows water wets only a few inches of her measuring stick. Water rationing was ordered throughout the Rio Grande Valley and violators were threatened with $1000 fines.

Recall Blind Jack Duncan, Sedalia's Own Phrenologist

By W. D. Agee

Sedalia about a third of a century ago had a personage, Blind Jack Duncan, colored, who was a self-styled phrenologist.

Jack lived at 117 East Jefferson and his humble home was visited from time to time by many seeking to ascertain what they were best fitted for in business, matrimony, home life, or industry. His clientele, naturally, was mostly women and they would trek to his domicile, occasionaly singly, but mostly in pairs or small groups to have him reveal what the future might have in store for them in the way of successes, what they would be most proficient in and to let him give them words of encouragement.

In most all instances he would picture them as having wonderful opportunities and happiness. He was philisophic, however, in his deductions after fingering over craniums and would not always paint a word picture of great achievements, financial success or other aggrandizement and occasionally would inject a "fly in the ointment."

He would tell them what they wanted to know—and what in fact nearly all already knew—and this made them happy and they went on their way rejoicing after leaving a tender coin for him and his conjectures.

Jack had no place in his operations for clairvoyants, sooth-sayers or the ordinary fortune tellers, such as the gypsies who roamed the country in those days. These nomads would always have a group of women of foreign decent who would tell fortunes for the crossing of the palm of the hand with a coin and sometimes, after a gypsy would get an elderly person, or one unsophisticated, enthralled and the gypsy departed they would find themselves minus a wallet and its contents, or else some bit of valuable jewelry.

There are many persons in Sedalia today who visited Jack Duncan when in his hey-day and even some of them still hold to the belief that his prognostications concerning them came out just as he would have them.

Others were more disappointing, but regardless, they say, it was an experience to always remember as the years come and go.

Hopes and fears of these one-time patrons were unfolded to the "phrenologist" who seemed to abhor any reference to him as a fortune-teller. He seemed to have an uncanny, or mysterious, way of revealing names of his visitors apparently without any visible or outside information concerning them.

It was possible he might have, through his questioning, caused the unsuspecting ones to divulge their identity in a way they did not readily comprehend but even so they seemed to appear satisfied with his insight and reflective facilities regarding the ones concerned.

Character of the individual was analyzed, sentiments, impulses and intellectual propensities were outlined.

Withal, Jack was an individual whose name was familiar to most all of the older residents of Sedalia whether they ever visited his "phrenological" quarters or not.

The days of fortune-tellers and clairvoyants in Sedalia are over as city ordinances now are so rigid that they cannot now follow such pursuits here.
